B.C. energy goals released

New board to control rates

The Social Credit government today released its long-promised, long-delayed provincial energy policy and it contains few surprises.

It simply ties up in a single package promises and policies enunciated by various government spokesman over the past two years.

The one semi-surprise in Energy Minister Bob McClelland's announcement is that the B.C. Energy Commission will be replaced by a B.C. Utilities Commission which will have the power to regulate B.C. Hydro gas and electricity rates.

The final word on Hydro rates has rested with the provincial cabinet until now.

One other new item: No further hydro-electric development by private interests will be permitted.

All future developments will be carried out by Hydro in accordance with policy directions set by the government.

McClelland was asked whether this spells the end for Alcan's proposed $800 million plan to expand its 1,092 megawatt power station at Kemano, south of Kitimat.

The station would have powered three new smelters in northern B.C.

McClelland said this is something that will have to be negotiated.

Much of the policy bared today had a ring of familiarity.

— Consideration is being given to a Vancouver Island natural gas pipeline.

— Research and development of alternate energy sources will be intensified.

— Energy exports will be reviewed and energy pricing policies examined.

— B.C.'s dependence on imported oil must be reduced and greater use made of our own natural gas resource.

— The government has set a target of reducing oil consumption from the present 45 per cent of our total energy needs to below 40 per cent by 1985.

— To show its commitment to energy conservation, the government intends to replace all its vehicles with more fuel-efficient models. However this will occur in the normal vehicle replacement process over the years.

Nuclear energy was not mentioned in the policy statement but McClelland ruled it out categorically.

"Nuclear energy is not an option for B.C.," he said in reply to a question.

The fundamental objective of the energy policy, McClelland said, is "energy security" for B.C.

The policy has been two years in the making under three ministers — Jack Davis, Jim Hewitt and now McClelland.

It was to have been released in September but was delayed until December and finally was made public at a breakfast meeting today at the Empress.

"It's pretty thin soup," commented NDP energy critic Bob Skelly.

"The elephant has labored and given birth to a rat.

"We can't see that there is anything new in this policy. Most of the things the government has announced already. A public utilities commission was promised in B.C, Hydro prospectuses as far back as 1976." Skelly said.

McClelland said the policy

Colwood RCMP Const. Craig Reid examines car in which five were killed

Family of 5 dies in car crash

A Courtenay family of five — three of them young children — was killed in a head-on crash of their small car at Langford Sunday afternoon.

Roger DeMong, 36, district agriculturist for the upper island; his wife Marion, 34; son David, nine; daughters Laura, six and Kathryn, 20 months, were returning home after a weekend with Mrs. DeMong's parents at Sidney.

Colwood RCMP said a southbound pickup truck glanced off another car on Trans-Canada Highway near Spencer, then struck the DeMong car, killing the occupants outright.

Truck driver Murray Marchment, 37, of Youbou, received multiple injuries and is in critical condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Occupants of the first car were not injured.

Police said the accident happened at 3:55 a quarter-mile north of Spencer where the highway curves around the west end of Florence Lake.

Marchment's pickup glanced off the first car, also northbound, then carried on into the path of the DeMong car.

Almost exactly a year ago a head-on collision took the lives of four persons within 300 feet of the same spot.

DeMong was well-known in the Courtenay area, where he was appointed by the provincial agriculture department in March 1973.

It was his first posting in the province, having been employed by the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool previously.

He and his wife were both from Saskatchewan, from which Mrs. DeMong's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Powell, retired to Sidney.

DeMong was a voluntary probation officer at Courtenay and with his wife was active in their Roman Catholic parish. A mass was to be said today at 5 p.m. at St. Patrick's Church.

UN shah probe accepted by Iran

Times News Services

TEHRAN — The drawn-out hostage crisis at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran appeared on the road to a settlement today with the announcement that Iran has agreed to a UN-sponsored international commission to consider allegations against the deposed shah.

"The international commission will be effective in solving the hostage crisis," a spokesman for the Iranian foreign ministry said of the weekend decision by the governing Revolutionary Council.

Establishment of the commission, proposed by UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, has been approved by Iranian leader Ayatollah Khomeini as well as the council, said Nassirosadat Salami.

A spokesman for the militants, reached by telephone at the embassy, said he was aware of the council's decision, announced Saturday night, but refused to comment.

Salami did not say when the commission would begin deliberations in Tehran. However, he said its members would be selected by Waldheim and would include Iranian and foreign representatives.

Waldheim has spoken of a "package solution" to the hostage standoff that would involve releasing the Americans to a third party in Iran — such as the International Red Cross — while an international commission investigated allegations against the shah.

In an interview published over the weekend newly-elected Premier Abolhassan Bani-sadr was critical of the United States for its admission of the shah but placed the embassy takeover within the context of a protest against relations with a domineering power. "It is not yet determined how many of the hostages were spies and how many were not," Bani-Sadr was quoted as saying. "The Iranian nation does not aim at these few people; it aims at American policy."

Grits slip, undecided soar

TORONTO (CP) — A public opinion poll commissioned by the CTV television network shows the Liberal lead over the Progressive Conservatives has declined nationally and the number of undecided voters has increased to a whopping 40.4 per cent of the electorate.

However, the huge number of undecided voters makes it virtually impossible to use the poll to predict the result of the election.

The poll, taken last week after disclosure of the Canadian embassy's cloak-and-dagger activities in Iran and released Sunday, shows the Liberal lead slipped by five percentage points since another CTV poll conducted two weeks previously.

The CTV poll surveyed 2,039 voters nationally Wednesday, Thursday and Friday last week.

The question asked was: "In the upcoming federal election, which political party will you be most likely to vote for?"

Results from the Atlantic region showed the Liberals fell to 44 from 59 per cent, Tories increased to 37 from 32 per cent and the NDP jumped to 19 from nine per cent.

There was little change in Quebec, which at 51 per cent holds the largest number of undecided voters.

In the Prairies the Liberals plummeted to 26 from 41 per cent, the Tories rose to 51 from 43 per cent and the NDP increased to 22 from 16 per cent.

In British Columbia, where the percentage of undecided voters is almost as high as Quebec, the Tories rose to 38 per cent from 36, the Liberals sagged to 27 from 33, and the NDP increased to 35 from 31 per cent.

Sting stabs in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight members of Congress have been implicated in an FBI investigation of political corruption that was carefully monitored at the highest levels of the U.S. justice department to avert cases of entrapment, sources said Sunday.

As a result of the reports, a weekend conference of Republican congressmen, governors and other officials in Easton, Md., urged an "immediate, full, impartial" investigation of the allegations by congressional ethics committees.

The sources said FBI Director William Webster and top justice department lawyers closely policed the investigation and that the FBI was never the first to suggest bribes to public figures.

Convict rampage ends, 35 dead

Times News Services

SANTA FE, N.M. — Fires still burned in the New Mexico state penitentiary today as 1,100 prisoners huddled in tents outside the compound and stories unfolded of torture, mutilations and murder that left at least 35 prisoners dead, scores wounded, and 15 others missing.

State troopers and national guardsmen regained control of the prison Sunday without firing a shot.

Gov. Bruce King told a news conference that at least seven died of drug overdoses, others died of smoke inhalation and some were murdered. At least 14 others died in reprisal slayings, which included decapitations and other dismemberment, burnings and hangings.

The governor said a total of 60 prisoners were unaccounted for, including the dead.

State police said more bodies were found today in the gymnasium which had still been burning early today. "They're inside looking for more right now," Ulibarri said. "That's where the biggest fire was."

The 36 hours of carnage at the prison was the most serious since the 1971 Attica riot in upstate New York left 43 persons dead.

State officials said it may cost as much as $60 million to replace the state's only maximum-security prison which was built to house 850 and was holding 1,136 when the riot erupted early Saturday. In the meantime, Gov. King appealed today to neighboring states to take some of the prisoners.

The rioters, who ransacked prison offices and found confidential records, turned on informers with savage revenge, officials said. Many were attacked with meat cleavers and burned.

A headless corpse was propped up in a courtyard. One prisoner had his eyes gouged out.

State police said the riot was not racially motivated, but racial tensions broke out afterwards.

Air fares to rise by 20%

TORONTO (CP) — Domestic air fares will be increased at least 20 per cent this year because of rising fuel prices, says Claude Taylor, president of Air Canada.

And further rises in energy costs as Canada heads toward oil self-sufficiency make more increases inevitable. Canadian airlines have already announced a 9.5-per-cent fare increase scheduled for March 1.

Air Canada's future aircraft purchases will depend on reaction by passengers to the higher prices, Taylor said.

"If energy prices cause fares to rise to such an extent that they cause the low-price end to dry up, it will have a major impact on air travel."

Defector ship leaves coast

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Russian freighter from which two crew members defected left here Sunday after making an unscheduled stop in Vancouver.

Freighter Captain Stephan Kharchenko said Saturday he wanted to talk to cargo officer Alexander Reguzov, 33, and cleaning woman Elena Tyerkhova, 22, to ask them why they wanted to leave the ship.

He said the two left the Aleksandr Serafimovich last Thursday on a shore leave on Vancouver Island and failed to return.

The two contacted Canadian immigration officials on Friday and were reported to be hiding in a downtown hotel.

16 die in blast of Rhodesian bus

SALISBURY (AP) — A guerrilla rocket and machine-gun attack on a rural bus killed 16 blacks and wounded 24 in the worst violence since the Rhodesian ceasefire began a month ago.

The attack occurred Sunday night 130 kilometres southeast of Salisbury. The Rhodesian military command blamed Robert Mugabe's guerrillas, who were operating in the area before the truce went into effect Dec. 29.

The force of the rockets and machine-gun bullets sent bodies flying up to 30 metres. The victims were returning to Salisbury from visits to relatives and friends in the eastern garrison town of Umtali.

"It was awful," said one of the wounded, Baxter Machuana, a 31-year-old welder. "The driver was hit first. His head exploded from his body. There was blood all over. Then the bus crashed and people were screaming and rushing to get out the windows. And still there was shooting."

Violence between political rivals has increased during the campaign for the parliamentary elections Feb. 27-29, the first in which all black political factions will participate.

One black was killed and four were wounded earlier Sunday in a grenade attack on a bus carrying supporters of Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa, the major political rival of Mugabe and Joshua Nkomo, the co-leaders of the Patriotic Front guerrilla alliance.

Two others were crushed to death and 35 injured when thousands of blacks stampeded from a Mugabe rally in Gwelo, 150 km south of Salisbury.

undercover FBI men posing as representatives of an Arab sheik offering bribes to win a casino gambling licence and other favors.

At least 20 public officials and 10 lawyers and businessmen were implicated in the 14-month investigation, one source said. It is the largest investigation of political corruption that the FBI has ever undertaken.

The source, who asked not to be named, said that FBI agents paid out almost $500,000 in cash to the officials, although fewer than 10 of them took money. "Some arranged meetings or did other favors," the source said.

In addition to state and local officials in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the source said those who became subjects of the investigation were:

Senator Harrison Williams, a New Jersey Democrat, along with Representative John Murphy, (Dem. N.Y.), Representative Frank Thompson (Dem. N.J), Representative Michael Myers (Dem. Pa.), Representative Raymond Lederer (Dem. Pa.), Representative John Jenrette (Dem. S.C.), Representative John Murtha (Dem. Pa.) and Representative Richard Kelly (Rep. Fla.).

All those asked to comment denied any wrongdoing.

About 100 FBI agents began interviewing the 30 subjects of the investigation on Saturday to advise them of the investigation, read them their rights and question them.

Ottawa sells gold to repay bank loan

OTTAWA (CP) — The government last month repaid $300 million previously borrowed from chartered banks to support the dollar, thanks in part to a $174-million sale of gold, the finance department said today.

The sale of 252,000 ounces of gold, part of a previously-announced plan to reduce the high proportion of gold in the official reserves, was made at an average price of $690 an ounce, the department said.

As a result, gold holdings stood at 21.93 million ounces as of Jan. 31.

"The proportion is still very lop-sided," a finance department official said, estimating that gold still represents more than 80 per cent of official reserves.

The gold sale, along with a general strengthening of the dollar in January, enabled the government to repay the last of an outstanding credit facility opened in 1977 and 1978 with domestic and foreign banks to support the value of the dollar on international money markets.

In its monthly statement of official reserves, the department said that reserves of foreign currency at the end of January stood at $4.0 billion, up $179 million from December.

All figures are in terms of U.S. dollars.

The increase occurred after a decline of $3.1 million in reserve assets denominated in Special Drawing Rights — a basket of currencies representing member countries of the International Monetary Fund. The decline occurred because of a fall in the U.S. dollar value of SDRs.

In addition, there was an increase of $186.5 million representing the 141.1 million SDRs allotted to Canada by the International Monetary Fund which developed the special currency.

In his December budget, Finance Minister John Crosbie announced the government's intention to sell up to one million ounces of gold to reduce the growing proportion of gold.

The repayment of the $300 million in standby credit owed chartered banks completes payment of borrowings made during the last several years to defend the Canadian currency on international markets.

The loan repayment is a sign of the improved strength of the dollar which rose by more than one cent last month to 86.30 cents (U.S.) as of Friday.

The department said U.S. dollar holdings at the end of January were $1.8 billion, down $70.8 million.

ing to return to Iran to battle the Khomeini regime.

In an interview published today in The Times, Bakhtiar says that messages on tape cassettes sent to elements in the Iranian armed forces have been favorably received.

"I expect to be in Iran again before there is a collapse, since to wait for a collapse would give the Tudeh (Communist) party a chance to take over," he said.

Khomeini today strongly condemned the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and pledged "unconditional" support for Moslem people in that country.

In his first comment on the Christmas Day invasion of Iran's eastern neighbor, Khomeini said it is the duty of Moslems everywhere to oppose aggression around the world.

"We are Moslems and for Moslems there is no East or West, it is our duty to condemn any aggression, that is an Islamic ritual," the ailing head of Iran's revolutionary government said.

Three nations raise oil price

TOKYO (AP) — Indonesia, Nigeria and Algeria raised the price of their crude oil today. They were the eighth, ninth and 10th members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to raise prices in a week.

Indonesia raised its price $2, to $29.50 U.S. ($34.18 Canadian) a barrel from $27.50, Japanese clients reported. Nigeria and Algeria announced during the weekend they will increase prices to $34 U.S. ($39.35 Canadian) a barrel from $30, effective today.

The prices now range from a low of $26 charged by Saudi Arabia, which started the ball rolling Jan. 28, about $34.

Libya, the leader at $34.72 for a 42-gallon barrel, has not announced an increase so far.

Algeria supplies about four per cent of Canada's current imports of two million barrels a day.

Woman's body found in Abbotsford

ABBOTSFORD (CP) — RCMP said the badly-decomposed body of a woman was found Sunday in some woods in a residential area here.

There was no immediate indication of the woman's identity, but officers investigating the disappearance of Shirley Yablonski have been called in.

Police said Sunday their investigation was being hampered by bad weather.

Mrs. Yablonski, a mother of two boys aged 17 and 16, and a girl, 12, disappeared last August while working alone on the night shift at a convenience store in Abbotsford.

At the time, RCMP they were treating the disappearance as a possible abduction.

Cliff-saver plan approved

VANCOUVER (CP) — An $800,000 plan to stabilize eroding cliffs on the University of British Columbia endowment lands has been approved in principle by the Universities Council of B.C.

The plan, prepared by soils expert Stanley Weston, includes revegetation of the cliffs, fencing the slopes and rebuilding the storm drain outlet from the university.

Dr. Bill Gibson, chairman of the council, said UBC has enough money in its public works budget to start soon on the $60,000 first phase to remove dangerous, root-damaged trees from the cliff edge and begin replanting vegetation.

"We have to stop the human causes of erosion," Gibson said. "It's incredible what has been going on there. People were skiing down the cliffs. They were dumping cars over the edge to watch them bounce."

The argument over controlling erosion goes back to 1959 when the parks board began dumping fill on the beach. Originally, the board wanted to build a road around the cliffs to stop erosion ~~but university students gathered to~~ stop the bulldozers.

In 1970 the university and its alumni association agreed to put up $1,000 each to fund a study of the erosion. Then student president Tony Hodge estimated the work would cost $100,000.

Two years later the provincial government promised a $250,000 contribution toward erosion control and the plan was to dump a thick blanket of sand and gravel for more than 1,000 metres along the beach. But, nothing was done because there was an outcry from people who claimed the gravel would destroy Vancouver's last remaining natural beach.

In 1973 an erosion expert from Wyoming was called in, the plan escalated to $350,000 but still nothing was done.

Bulldozers moved onto the beach again in March 1974, but were blocked by protesters. A court injunction was obtained and by April the work was finally underway.

A year later winter waves washed away almost all the sand and gravel laid down at such a high cost.

UBC prof held for wife murder

LAUSANNE, Switzerland (UPI) — Police said today they have arrested Canadian university professor Cyril Belshaw in connection with the mutilation killing of his wife last year.

Belshaw, whose arrest had been requested by a Swiss judge, travelled to Paris in December and was extradited to Switzerland over the weekend, police said.

The body of his wife, Betty, 59, who had also taught at the University of British Columbia, was found last March 28 near the Swiss town of Aigle. Her head and legs had been severed from the body and wrapped in plastic bags.

The investigating Swiss magistrate who issued the international warrant for Belshaw's arrest said the professor and his wife had been on a skiing vacation in Montana, about a one-hour drive from where Mrs. Belshaw's remains were found.

Police said Belshaw has been put under "investigative custody."

Tug strike call to be delayed

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 600-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers will take its time in announcing a date for a tugboat strike, says union president Tom McGrath.

But the rival Seafarers International Union says its members will not support the strike, even though the B.C. Federation of Labor says it has given the strike unanimous support.

"The strike is inevitable, but we'll pick a time suitable to us, not the employers," McGrath said Sunday. "The impact is big and we know it's big."

A strike will halt 70 per cent of coastal tug operations, including shipment of heating oil to Vancouver Island and the movement of lumber and supplies to scores of coastal mills.

Wolf poisoning rapped

VANCOUVER (UPC) — The Greenpeace Foundation has condemned the B.C. Fish and Wildlife Branch for issuing a third permit to poison wolves and coyotes.

Greenpeace President Patrick Moore said Sunday the permit, allowing the use of the "inhumane" poison Compound 1080 would amount to a "free government extermination program" against wolves.

Moore said the foundation will join the B.C. Association for the Protection of Fur Bearing Animals in appealing to the province's pesticide control board to have the permit quashed.

Board spokesman Bayne Vance confirmed Friday the issue of the permit, to be used for "reactive control" of wolves and coyotes, said to be killing livestock in various areas of the province.

Moore said he cannot understand why the branch wants to poison wolves and coyotes when "not that many livestock are being killed."

"Compound 1080 has been banned in the United States and out of general use for 10 years because it's inhumane and because it's also been proven to kill a lot of animals other than those it's supposed to kill," Moore said.

Ginter ordered to pay

VANCOUVER (CP) — Businessman Ben Ginter has been ordered to pay a Missouri man $175,000 under a 1976 agreement for services performed for Ginter and his companies.

British Columbia Supreme Court was told Ginter failed to issue certain shares to Noel Smith of Taylor, Mo. within 90 days or pay the money before Feb. 20, 1977 in consideration for Smith's agreeing not to sue at that time.

Justice A. B. Macfarlane said in giving judgment that Smith further agreed to extend payment of a $500,000 mortgage against Ginter's residence for six months.

"Smith performed his promises, but Ginter did not," the judge said.

Faculty okays contract

CASTLEGAR (CP) — After more than 10 months of negotiations, the Selkirk College Faculty Association has ratified a new one-year contract.

The new contract is similar to one previously rejected, but has changes in the contentious issues of faculty evaluations and layoff procedures.

Faculty negotiator Ger van Beynum said the contract for the 110 members employed at campuses in Castelgar, Nelson and Trail provides for a seven-per-cent salary increase.

The association had been seeking an 11-per-cent increase.

Politics and sport

The response of Victoria Times readers to the question of whether Canada should boycott the 1980 Olympics shows a realistic appraisal of the state of the International Games. More than 70 per cent of the 1,300 respondents felt that the Moscow Games should be boycotted if the Soviet Union does not withdraw its troops from Afghanistan.

The results of the voluntary poll indicate that in most people's minds politics and the Olympics in their present form cannot be separated.

Politics have a long history of interference in the international sporting event. The ideals of men and women competing against each other without regard to race, color or political persuasion and in the interests of international friendship have been strained most recently by the boycott of South Africa for its apartheid policies, the withdrawal of some African nations for the same reason and by the controversy over whether Taiwan or Mainland China would be the official representatives of China.

Now the politics of location is in the foreground. Not since 1936 and the Berlin Olympics has the actual site of the Games meant so much.

And while Canada, the United States and other countries grapple with the question of boycott, the Soviet Union is preparing for not just a sporting event, but one of the biggest political shows in its history.

The editor of Maclean's magazine, Peter Newman, has just returned from a trip to Moscow. In this week's edition he offers some insight into just how serious the Soviets have taken the event.

"Preparation for the Games has become the country's top civilian priority. An estimated $3 billion is being spent on construction and renovation . . . 7,000 cooks and 1,500 headwaiters are in daily training to feed the expected 300,000 visitors . . . as well as bestowing on the U.S.S.R.'s leadership the warm glow of international legitimacy, participation and victory in the individual events would be a source of genuine pride among ordinary citizens."

It has also been reported that children and incarcerated 'mental' patients are being escorted out of Moscow so as not to be influenced by the foreign visitors. Andrei Sakharov will be meeting few westerners from his exile in Gorky.

Few would believe that a boycott by Western and Middle East nations would make the Soviets withdraw their troops from Afghanistan. But the absence of competitors from many nations would not allow Soviet officials to bask before their countrymen in the glow of international legitimacy. Little pride will be evoked by victory in individual events.

In the longterm, unless the Olympics are given a permanent home, political involvement will probably destroy the international sporting event. But for 1980, unless the Games are moved or the Russians pull out of Afghanistan, Canada should decline to participate.

Double think

The dramatic increase in the number of undecided voters should be an indication to the three national parties that the electorate is not prepared to be treated as mindless ballot markers. As the election campaign moves into its final two weeks, the Liberals and Conservatives in particular, continue through their advertising to portray the leaders of the opposite parties as incompetents.

A CTV poll conducted over the weekend indicates that an increasing number of people are trying to take this election seriously, trying to analyse the issues. Since the last poll two weeks ago the number of undecided voters rose from 30 to 40 per cent.

Little effort has been put into giving the public an honest appraisal of the parties' policies. The Tories try to show Trudeau as an old has-been who stands alone at the head of his party, bereft of an original idea. The Liberals seem to play on Clark's physical liabilities, trying to show him as a person who trips over his feet and policies with equal ease.

At a time when one would expect Canadians to be firming up their political committments, the opposite is happening. But when their intelligence is being insulted and assailed by inane political TV commercials, who can blame voters for thinking twice.

"On the job training. We want to work for Sam Bawlf."

Republicans recruit Ford?

WASHINGTON — You're not going to believe this, but the longer this presidential election goes on, the more talk you hear among Republicans in these parts about getting Jerry Ford off the golf courses of America and drafting him into the presidential election campaign.

The more the Republicans look at Ronald Reagan, the younger and more attractive Jerry Ford appears. The more they think about George Bush as their candidate against Jimmy Carter, the more they wonder whether this nice bush-league man can really make it to the White House. Ford, however, has some things in his favor. Even Jimmy Carter began his inaugural address on Jan. 20, 1977 by saying: "For myself and for the nation, I want to thank my predecessor for all he has done to heal our land."

Good shape

Gerald Ford is now 66. He was born on Bastille Day, July 14, 1913, in Omaha, Neb., and still looks and acts like your high school football coach. He was in the House of Representatives for 25 years, vice president from 1973-74, and president, by accident, from 1974 until Carter defeated him narrowly in the presidential election of 1976.

Not surprisingly, Ford kept hearing "Hail to the Chief" in the night. He was building a new house in California and working on his slice, which was a menace to the nearby real estate, but he kept thinking vaguely that maybe being president was easier.

So for the last few months, agaist the wishes of his sensible wife, Ford has been running around the country talking to students, and addressing chicken-dinner Republican audiences about the sins of Jimmy Carter and the glories of the Republican Party, and who knows? In the confusion, a lot of Republicans are beginning to say that maybe Old Jerry is the best presidential candidate they have.

When he left the White House, Ford could claim — and he has been claiming it all over the country ever since — that he had inflation under control, that he had an agreement with the Soviet Union to control the arms race, and even an arrangement on "human rights" to get tens of thousands of Jews out of Moscow.

Now, Ford is arguing, inflation under the Carter administration is out of control, that the arms race is more menacing than ever before, and that Carter's "human rights" policy has been a disaster.

The Republicans don't quite know what to do with this problem within their own party. For a while, they thought that the mood of the nation was conservative and that they could probably win with any candidate they put forward.

They bet on Reagan, but he lost in Iowa. They thought that Connally might succeed with his conservative and pugnacious themes, but that didn't work. That left them with Bush of Texas and Sen. Baker of Tennessee, but neither has shown signs of being able to defeat Carter. Accordingly, they're now thinking that maybe Ford might come to the rescue in the nominating convention in Detroit and in the November election against Carter.

All this has been sort of a surprise to Ford. He went around the country making speeches to Republican allies, because that's what he had always done, but not seriously thinking it would lead to anything else.

As a matter of fact, his family wondered why he was still working the old political chicken-circuit, and asked why he didn't stay home and look after his family.

The events of the last few months, however, have changed all this. The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, and the capture of the American hostages in Iran have forced the Republicans, as they have the Democratic administration, to reappraise their policies.

On the Republican side, it has been realized that they can make a major argument against both Carter's domestic and foreign policy record, but that this argument is not being made by Reagan, Bush, Baker or any of the other Republican presidential candidates.

Democrats won't divide

Accordingly, many of the Republican leaders are now going back to Ford, and to Henry Kissinger and the other members of the former Ford Cabinet in the hope of mounting a major attack on Carter during the coming months of the presidential campaign. For awhile, the Republicans thought that Senator Kennedy would divide the Democrats and open the way to a Republican victory by any GOP candidate, but they are inclined to believe now that Kennedy is finished, and that their main hope lies in a Republican candidate who can expose what they regard as Carter's record of failure.

A few months ago, the Republicans thought Reagan might be the leader of such a Republican victory, and some of them still believe that Bush might do so, but increasingly, they are talking about Ford, and hoping that he may come forward as a compromise candidate who can unite the Republicans and carry the battle to the Democrats in November.

Victoria Landmarks

Archives have been described as records no longer in current use but which have been saved as they have continuing value.

Governments, businesses, churches and many organizations have such papers that document past activities and decisions, and preserve legal agreements. Individuals and families have their personal archives, too. Often, these are letters or photographs.

Apartment dwellers with limited storage space may be forced to discard much that was formerly stored in attic or basement or "the empty room." And hasti-notes, airforms and the telephone may have largely replaced the long letters of the past, yet many of us tend to keep some letters and photographs.

Such photographs should be dated on the back, and the pictured people identified.

For some future relative — possibly yet unborn — may want to explore family background, or a student might be helped in some kind of writing. So identify the pony-tailed child with the fishing rod, and the grinning moppet in stripey T-shirt.

Many older people in this area date and identify pictures carefully, as, in the past, they've been baffled by unidentified pictures of, say, pig-tailed child in frilly pinafore and button-boots or by serious small boy in Little Lord Fauntleroy suit.

Devastating

I have just joined the ranks of those who have had their hospital admission and surgery cancelled.

My admission for surgery was booked six months ago, and while it is not life-saving in nature, it is certainly considered necessary major surgery. It is quite a mental ordeal to prepare oneself psychologically for surgery, and to have it cancelled, especially in the manner I experienced, is quite devastating.

I was advised by the Victoria General Hospital that I would be contacted by telephone, Jan. 24, 1980, by noon, to confirm my arrangements for surgery. I stayed home from work that day and waited anxiously by the telephone. My bag was packed and arrangements made to have a relative drive me to the hospital. I waited and waited! By 2:30 p.m. I still had heard nothing. I finally telephoned the hospital myself, only to be told that indeed my surgery had been cancelled. I inquired about what was to happen next, and when I might expect to be rebooked, only to receive non committed patter which amounted to an "I don't know"! My doctors' offices could offer no additional information except that it would probably be another six months before I could hope to get in.

On a recent newscast, the statement was made that there are 1,200 people on the waiting list for admission to the Jubilee Hospital.

What is happening to our hospital care services? Our new hospital is still a plowed field. The shortage in extended care facilities remains acute. As Minister of Health, Rafe Mair has offered nothing to help improve this inordinate situation. — June Lukas, Victoria.

Preserve life

Your front page photograph (Victoria Times, Jan. 24) of Kmarjit Gupta standing under two elephant tusks, described as "inflation shelter", represents a graphic demonstration of mankind's material greed, physical arrogance, and spiritual retardation in the presence of life as it is variously present in our environment.

While Kmarjit Gupta might believe that ivory taken at the price of a bullet in Africa is ". . . a better hedge than gold" against inflation, he might do well to reflect that a reverence for life is a better hedge than killing against extinction, since all living species, including Kmarjit Gupta's own human species, are drawn together into a fragile balance of mutual interdependence upon which the survival of all must ultimately rest.

Since I share Kmarjit Gupta's humanity, I find myself deeply affronted by an example of human behavior that would travel to Uganda in order to shoot an elephant for its tusks. Far from feeling pride in the presence of such a trophy, I would feel shame in the presence of such a gross and wasteful act of unnecessary violence against the dignity of life where this might still have existed in its wild innocence but for the unthinking accuracy and machine-tooled precision of Mr. Gupta's gun. — John C. Cawood, 568 Gemini Drive.

Laurel and Hardy

I believe the most crucial issue in the federal election is not whether Trudeau or Clark is the most offensive leader, but one of fiscal responsibility.

Clark has the temerity to call his budget "tough but fair." He shot mortgage rates up to a record level, insisting this would produce spillover effects for everyone. This directly ignored the findings of the apolitical Economic Council of Canada, and eminent Harvard economist John Kenneth Galbraith, who both reported the only spillover effect would be in bank coffers, at the sole expense of the middle income earner. Even B.C. Socreds have realized the ludicrousness of such a policy, as seen by their recent mortgage offer.

Furthermore, Clark's 18-cent surcharge on gasoline has been denounced by economists across Canada as recessionary. And while he would have us shell out of our own pockets, there is no mention of even collecting $2 billion in outstanding corporate taxes, let alone having them share the load. In fact, of the $90 billion Clark hopes to collect, $33 billion goes to oil companies (just as Standard Oil declares a record $1 billion dollar profit) and $44 billion to Alberta Conservative Premier Lougheed.

Finally, the Clark government has compared UIC to "paying a man to burn his house down," and in the case of Trident directly contributed to record unemployment. It is clear that only corporations and Conservatives benefit from Clark's budget, and equally clear that Crosbie and Clark are the Laurel and Hardy of financial management. — Lari Mitchell, 9951 3rd Street, Sidney.

Leave as it is

Last week I saw two articles in the Victoria Times about Anthony Island at the southwestern tip of the Queen Charlotte Islands. These articles have discussed the merits of designating Ninstints Village site (an abandoned Haida village) as a "World Cultural Site".

Neither article has mentioned the following facts:

(1) Anthony Island is already a provincial park with high legislative protection.

(2) Staff of the Provincial Museum and the Heritage Conservation Branch keep the poles free of vegetation (which would promote faster deterioration).

(3) The site is a recognized archeological site and is protected by the Heritage Conservation Act.

(4) Many of the best poles and artifacts were removed years ago by museums and other collectors.

(5) There are no standing buildings, merely the remains amid the enclosed West Coast jungle.

(6) "World Cultural Site" designation would bring the curious to this remote island, increasing wear and tear.

(7) There are many other native village sites which were abandoned, on the Charlottes and elsewhere.

(8) The Ninstints people were largely destroyed by smallpox, brought to them by Europeans. The few remaining then moved to Skidegate, much to the northeast. Anthony Island is a grave, a tomb, a symbol of a clash between two cultures; it is a hauntingly sad place. It is not a place for our society to erect a plaque or to place on a prestige list rejoicing its significance. Are we also proud of Nahwitti, a village on Vancouver Island which the British Navy destroyed by cannon-fire? It's just too late to honor the preceding culture in this region with the fanfare of an international list.

In conclusion, the site of Ninstints Village is the heritage of the Haida people. It is fine in its present state, as a remote park and archeological site. Any future decisions (e.g. official designations, etc.) are the prerogative of the Haida, not the responsibility of Parks Canada, the Museum of Man or the Victoria Times. — James Unger, 144 Eberts Street.

Liberal past

The article, Justifying the Election, by Allan Fotheringham recently published in the Victoria Times, emphasizes the recent government fiasco of the defeat of the Conservatives by the irresponsible opposition and minority parties.

When we find MPs who are paid approximatly $42,000 annually and elected on the assumption that they have brains and intelligence, acting like children, their salaries should be returned to the taxpayer.

Canadians by electing the Conservatives indicated they were disgusted with Trudeau and the Liberals' obvious mismanagement of Canada's affairs. They were more than concerned by the fantastic debt that the Liberals had created of $50 to 60 billion; the borrowing of huge sums of money to pay the interest on this debt was another burden for all taxpayers.

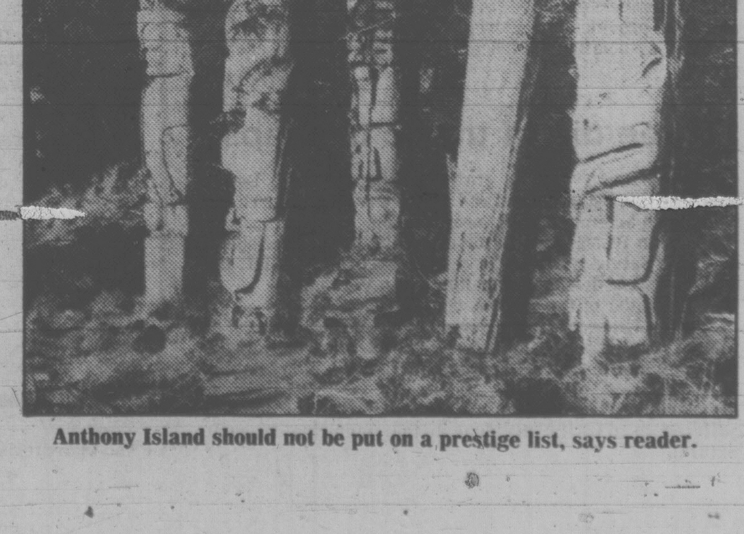
The Liberals' ever increasing concessions and patronizing of French Canadians and their so called bilingual policy has created animosity and aggravated the majority of electors.

Canadians are also concerned over Trudeau's ridiculing of the monarchy and his determination to change our constitution.

John Crosbie submitted a realistic budget primarily to rectify the huge financial taxpayers burden inherited from the Liberals, to stabilize and give our dollar some value in world markets. But the Conservatives were defeated by the whims of the idiotic opposition and minority parties, adding millions of dollars for election costs to our appalling fiscal debt.

It appears that the parties responsible for the recent defeat of the government are telling the Canadian electors that they were ignorant when they elected the Conservatives.

It is my opinion that the electors will show their indignation over this recent government fiasco by giving the Conservatives a firm majority in the coming election. — G. W. Frost, Sooke.



Anthony Island should not be put on a prestige list, says reader.

SALT supporters wave grim stats

WASHINGTON — The nation's top intelligence officials are completing a grim new estimate predicting that, without a Soviet-American strategic arms agreement, Soviet rockets in 1989 will be able to rain nearly 250 per cent more atomic warheads on the United States than they would have if constrained by SALT II and successor agreements.

The new National Intelligence Estimate — NIE 1138-79 — indicates that, by 1989, the Soviets could have some 14,000 highly accurate warheads mounted on their land-based missile force aimed at the United States. By U.S. estimates, the Soviets would have about 6,000 such warheads under a SALT II treaty, which would expire in 1985 but could be extended.

These still-secret figures are the first concrete contribution to an emerging debate within the government about one consequence of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan (and subsequent derailing of SALT II) that has received scant public attention thus far.

Tense time ahead?

This debate is prompted by the widely perceived conclusion that the United States is in danger of entering into a tense period of confrontation with the Soviet Union without a coherent or broadly supported policy dealing with nuclear weapons.

The administration hoped it had such a policy built around the SALT II treaty and a program of new strategic arms procurement that went with it. Even before the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, this policy — like the treaty — was in serious trouble, but now it appears to be on the verge of unravelling.

Senior administration officials now see a dangerous paradox — that the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, potentially a threat to U.S. security, has prevented passage of a Soviet-American arms agreement that they believe clearly serves the country's security interests.

For these officials, the new National Intelligence Estimate provides proof that SALT II would put crucial constraints on a Soviet missile buildup that otherwise could threaten the survivability of the U.S. retaliatory missile force.

Several officials in the White House, Pentagon and State Department said in interviews in recent days that the prospect of a world without SALT — so starkly defined by the new NIE — could jolt the country and the Senate into the realization that SALT II is now more urgent than ever.

By extending the new intelligence estimate out to 1989, the intelligence officials throughout the government who prepare National Intelligence Estimates for the president cover the period in which the new U.S. super-missile, the MX, is supposed to be fully deployed.

The United States is currently planning to build 200 of these huge missiles, each carrying 10 warheads. The idea is to truck them around concrete "racetracks" in desert valleys of Utah and Nevada, hiding them at random in 4,600 concrete shelters as protection against a Soviet strike. The system is estimated to cost between $30 billion and $100 billion.

But the arcane arithmetic of nuclear forces that drives the arms race could change dramatically without SALT limits in force, raising questions about whether this MX project — a scheme of unprecedented cost and complexity — is the right answer.

Under SALT, government specialists estimate the Soviets could possibly aim 3,000 warheads at the MX silos, with the rest of their arsenal aimed at other U.S. missiles and military and civilian targets. About half the MX force would survive a Soviet attack, they believe, enough to still deter a Soviet strike in the first place.

But with 14,000 Soviet warheads, some 11,000 could be aimed at the MX silos, almost quadrupling the threat and calling the whole MX project, as now conceived, into question.

To maintain survival of half the MX force under an uncontrolled Soviet expansion, specialists say the first crude estimates undertaken indicate it could mean tripling the land needed in Utah and Nevada to handle still more silos and double the cost.

It is this kind of calculation that some top civilian officials believe will have what one called "a profound and sobering impact on people's perceptions of what the realities of a world without SALT will mean."

Budget-busting MX

The idea of building a budget-busting MX that might not even fulfill its mission is certain to reopen old arguments and start new ones on American procurement policy.

For example, some members of Congress and administration officials already are talking privately about reviving earlier ideas for missiles that can be carried aloft and fired from airplanes. Other ideas are to move toward a new class of less expensive, more accurate missile-carrying submarines, or even to go back to the idea of installing anti-ballistic missile (ABM) defences around existing missile silos to protect against attack. ABM's are banned by the SALT I treaty, so reverting to them would amount to "the death of arms control," one official said.

No-sex-please British? Ha!

By NORMAN WEBSTER
The Globe and Mail

LONDON — Every morning, on the way from Waterloo Station to Fleet Street, my bus passes the Strand Theatre and the marquee with the biggest lie in the English-speaking world. No Sex, Please — We're British, it roars, accompanied by snippets of reviews: "Very, very funny," "Roars of delight".

There are two things wrong here. First off, the play is not funny. It may, in fact, be the worst dramatic production anywhere since Prince Sihanouk stopped directing his own movies. But that's a quibble.

The main thing wrong with the marquee is its implication that the British are a strait-laced bunch, uninterested in the pleasures of the flesh. Nothing could be further from the truth. They are, in fact, a lubricious lot, in a land awash with sex. France may have the reputation, but Britain has the action.

Some of it brings a blush to the cheek of an innocent colonial. The top-ranked television performer, a game show host in early prime time, when the children are watching, minces and lisps a 1950s caricature of a faggot.

Transvestitism is a big seller in the night clubs. Jokes about genitals are a mainstay in every comedian's act.

Neighborhood sweet shops have racks of magazines showing cheerful ladies with their hands in their pants. Posters in the tube stations are explicit in the selling of underwear ("for those who prefer breast-shaped bras to bra-shaped breasts," purrs my favorite, deliciously illustrated).

A premise of popular entertainment is that any man worth his steak and kidney will cheat on his wife. One bank — yes, nothing is sacred — based an entire TV commercial on it, luring young marrieds to open accounts with its toothsome tellers.

As for the press, oh my. Each morning, while about two million sober copies of the Times, Guardian or Telegraph are opened by the mythical Brit in bowler and brolly, more than four times that many Suns, Stars and Mirrors are serving up bare bazooms to the masses.

Cold weather? Here's a girl wearing a pair of hand-knitted nipple cosies. The price of gold rising? Higher economics are explained with the aid of a recumbent nude covered strategically in krugerrands.

A picture selection from recent Suns includes: a nude girl in a tub with a soccer team (their reward for winning promotion), a leering man taking all the clothes off a girl (headline: The Happy Unhooker), an illustrated feature on the calories burned off by loveplay, and articles on shoes, gloves and sauces for Christmas dinner illustrated by nude women ("Jilly is a real dish who brings a saucy sparkle to every fella's eye.")

The highest or lowest expression of all this is found in Soho, the area in central London where the pornographers hold sway in blue movie rooms and sex shops.

Soho has gone hard core and become pretty seedy, much changed from what seem now to be the innocent days of the Sixties when you might see a girl sprinting between strip clubs with her artificial snake curled up in a shopping bag.

The latest from Soho is that it may have to change its face — or at least blank out the most offensive portions — in the wake of a recent report to Parliament on obscenity and film censorship.

The report, produced by a committee led by Bernard Williams, provost of King's College, Cambridge, came to the eminently sane conclusion that those who want pornography should be able to get it — but that those who don't want it shouldn't have it continually thrust upon them.

Soho could continue to sell its wares, but behind blank shop fronts, and parents wouldn't have to worry about what kind of sex education their 10-year-old might be getting in the local candy store. No more gynecology beside the Mars bars.

The Williams committee would ban pornography exploiting children or involving physical injury ("snuff movies"), live shows involving actual sexual activity "offensive to a reasonable person" and a very few films whose savagery and sadism went too far.

That would leave the sexy British with plenty of what they fancy.

Cornering the silver market

By ALEX BRUMMER

WASHINGTON — Much of the extraordinary rise in the price of silver can be attributed to the activities of one man, Nelson Bunker Hunt, and members of his family. Bunker Hunt is one of ten direct heirs to a fortune of $2 billion built up by the legendary Dallas oilman, H. L. Hunt, who died in 1974.

His heirs have carried on the good work and turned H. L. Hunt's mere $2 billion into an estimated $5 billion. This was partly achieved by shrewd and large-scale purchases on the silver markets of the world.

Indeed, Bunker Hunt's exploits on the silver markets have been so far-reaching that the Washington-based federal agency responsible for supervising the commodity markets — the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) — has forced changes on the rules of the large commodity markets in New York and Chicago in a bid to stem the Hunt family activities.

Bunker Hunt and one of his brothers, Herbert Hunt, immediately responded to encroachment of bureaucracy by buying themselves a 3 per cent stake in one of New York's most successful securities and commodity brokerage houses, the Bache Group, for a mere $2.85 million.

Nelson Bunker Hunt's recorded dealings date back to 1974 when he took delivery of a large quantity of silver at a price of $3.27 an ounce, as against the current rice of $40 an ounce. By 1976, a Hunt subsidary company was holding 20 million ounces worth around $5 an ounce at the time. He reckoned that it was grossly under-valued considering that production was only 300 million ounces a year and consumption was 500 milion ounces a year and rising, with the popularity of photography and the growing number of teeth to fill throughout the world.

Disappointed, he began a series of manoeuvres in a bid to get the price up. This included a visit to Saudi Arabia in a bid to persuade the then leader, King Faisal, to enter the market. Eventually, of course, pulled up by gold, silver did take off and Nelson Bunker Hunt's market activity increased. His actual silver holdings are now reckoned to be in the order of 23 million ounces but equally important he is said to hold more than 4,000 separate contracts on silver futures. This effectively means that Bunker Hunt, and a few associates in the Middle East, have more than enough of the metal to squeeze the market if they wanted to.

The Hunt's power in the market place has caught the attention of the CFTC which, by checking thousands of contracts placed with brokers across the U.S., has been able to trace a large part of the recent upsurge in the metal's price to the family. Officials in Washington only regret that they lack the power to carry their investigation to the London commodity markets, where it is believed the Hunts have also been busy.

In spite of the heavy hand of regulation, which will mean that the Hunts will have to sell their Chicago contracts by April, there is little doubt that they have made tremendous profits. Some experts put them in excess of $1 billion.

The "first family" interests range far beyond silver. They include oil and gas wells in eight states, millions of acres of farm land, including 4 million acres in Australia alone. They own the largest U.S. sugar beet producer, 2.5 millions tons of coal reserves, the 400 strong chain of Shakey's Pizza Parlors, 1,000 thoroughbred horses, as well as the Dallas soccer team, the Kansas City Chiefs American football team and World Championship Tennis.

But as well as being among the wealthiest families in the United States they are among the most controversial. They have an enormous suspicion of their employees who they always believe are trying to get a share of their wealth.

Their politics have also attracted attention. Bunker Hunt is on the national council of the right-wing John Birch Society which by reputation dislikes Jews, liberals (including the Rockefeller family) and blacks.

The unbelievable wealth of the Hunt family, their frequent brushes with authority and their ultra-right politics have never endeared them to the public in the same way as the Kennedys and the Rockefellers. The main public outlet for their money has been religion rather than mainstream politics.

In recent years Bunker Hunt alone is reputed to have given more than $40 million to church causes.

Job in Ethiopia

MONTREAL (UPC) — The Ethiopia Sugar Corp., in Addis Ababa, has contracted the Shawinigan Group to consult on the development of a $200-million (U.S.) sugar plantation and factory complex, the Quebec-based consulting firm said Thursday.

The project, to be funded through a loan from the African Development Bank, includes construction of a townsite complete with all facilities to accommodate 4,000 people.

Redpath International Inc. and Agrodev Canada Inc., both Canadian companies, were chosen as subconsultants to provide the sugar and land expertise.

The Shawinigan Group, an employee-controlled group of consultants in the field of energy and resource development, said the project was aiming for an annual production of 129,000 tons of sugar beginning 1985.

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. Monday at the Calgary public stockyards totalled 43 head. There were too few sales to quote any market trends.

Gas revenues drop for B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's natural gas revenues dropped by $1.5 million in January because exports to the United States had to be curtailed.

The recent cold snap in the province forced Westcoast Transmission to reduce its natural gas exports to the U.S. by as much as 63 million cubic feet a day so that domestic gas users would have enough to keep their houses warm.

Northwest Pipeline Corp. of Salt Lake City, the company which buys the gas from Westcoast, has a contract which calls for 809 million cubic feet of gas a day, but when temperatures dropped last week there were four days when Northwest's allotment was slashed by 63, 50, 41 and 45 million cubic feet.

Because the export price for natural gas is much higher than the domestic price, B.C. lost $250,000 in revenue for those four days alone.

Gas sold to the U.S. fetches about $5 a thousand cubic feet while gas sold domestically brings $1.17.

The problem is pipeline capacity. Westcoast's main pipeline can carry 1,390 million cubic feet a day and company president Ed Phillips says the system has been going full-tilt for the last few weeks.

"On several days the system has been carrying more than its rated capacity," Philips said.

Westcoast has applied in the past to expand its pipeline system but was turned down.

Newsprint raised

NEW YORK (AP) — Abitibi-Price Co., the largest newsprint maker in the world, has announced a six-per-cent increase in the price of the paper used in newspapers.

The increase appears to assure that a new round of price increases will spread through the newsprint industry, which has experienced short supplies.

The increase is effective May 1 and will boost the price of standard newsprint to $397.35 from $375 a ton.

The increase is slightly smaller than the one announced for the same date by Consolidated-Bathurst Inc., another large Canadian company, and matched by several other companies. That increase boosted the price $400 from $375 a ton.

The price of newsprint rose 17.1 per cent in 1979.

LONG LINE OF LINERS is inspected by workman at the Hoosier Energy power plant under construction at Merom, Ind. Fiberglass stack liners, each 20 feet in diameter, will be used in a 715-foot-high chimney to combat corrosion.

Business briefs

Uncle Ben's brewery shuts down

RED DEER (CP) — Operations at Uncle Ben's Brewery in Red Deer have been shut down, Joe Forgione, Alberta liquor control board general manager, announced.

Forgione said he believes the last day of beer production was Dec. 21. About five brewery employees were laid off at that time and only a single maintenance man is on the site.

Reasons for the closure are unclear. Ben Ginter, owner of the brewery, could not be reached at his Richmond, B.C., office.

Forgione said board's retail outlet at the Gates Ave. brewery was shut down Jan. 10 for lack of business. "We were down to selling 10 to 20 dozen beer a week from the store. We couldn't justify keeping it open. . . ."

Amalgamation accord approved

WINNIPEG (CP) — The boards of directors of Canadian Homestead Oils Ltd. and Inter-City Gas Ltd. have approved amalgamation agreements between the two companies, John Carstairs, vice-president of Inter-City, has announced.

The terms of amalgamation give shareholders 1.4 shares in the amalgamated corporation for each share of Canadian Homestead Oil and one share for each Inter-City share. The tentative date for shareholders' meetings is March 28.

PWA to try new service

CALGARY (CP) — Pacific Western Airlines has applied to the Canadian transport commission for a Calgary-Brandon-Toronto daily air service, says Executive Vice-President Hal Cope.

The regional airline, owned by the Alberta government, would consider the service a two-year experiment, he said.

Pacific Western would expect to lose money in the first two years of operation on the route.

Cope said the airline only considered the Brandon service because of its eastern charter operations. A jet stationed in Toronto for charter flights could be used for flights to Brandon when it was not needed for charter service.

EDC aids aircraft parts sale

OTTAWA (CP) — The Export Development Corp. has completed a $2.48-million (U.S.) financing agreement to support a $2.76-million (U.S.) sale of aircraft components by McDonnell Douglas Canada Ltd., Malton, Ont. to Finland, the agency has announced.

The sale to Finland's principal airline Finnair Oy is for wing and tail assemblies, related spare parts and services for three DC-9-51 aircraft. Two other EDC-financed McDonnell Douglas sales were made in 1976 and 1977 for the sale of six Canadian-made DC-9s.

Car, truck production slumps

DETROIT (AP) — Car production fell by one-third and truck production by 52 per cent in January from what they were in the same month last year, the five major auto-makers said.

The companies said they turned out 529,356 cars and 162,446 trucks during the month. In January of last year, 794,870 cars and 337,990 trucks were built.

Production figures for the other truck manufacturers are not immediately available. The five companies account for about 94 per cent of total truck production in the United States.

In cars, Ford Motor Co. production declined the most, 65 per cent. Chrysler Corp. output fell 50 per cent and General Motors Corp.'s dropped 16 per cent.

Among the smaller producers, American Motors Corp. output jumped 107 per cent due to the popularity of its four-wheel drive Eagle model. Volkswagen of America's fell 43 per cent because of a three-week strike at a stamping plant.

$4M plant set for Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — A $4.1-million carbon dioxide plant is going to be built here by Union Carbide Canada Ltd. of Toronto.

the plant, to open by mid-year, will produce about 180 tons daily of liquid carbon dioxide for food processing and beverage and industrial markets across Canada.

The plant will get its supply from Union Carbide's nearby petrochemical complex, which currently vents carbon dioxide into the air.

No Rosario bid by Hudson Bay

TORONTO (CP) — Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. of Toronto announced it has withdrawn its offer to buy Rosario Resources Corp. of New York and has sold its minority holdings in Rosario to AMAX Inc. of Greenwich, Conn.

The announcement said Hudson Bay Mining sold 597,600 shares, about 9.7 per cent of Rosario's outstanding shares, for $75 U.S. a share.

Hudson Bay Mining offered Jan. 16 through a U.S. subsidary to buy all of Rosario's remaining outstanding shares for $65 U.S. a share, or about $360 million.

Rosario's remaining outstanding shares for $65 U.S. a share, or about $360 million.

Roario's directors opposed the offer, which followed an earlier offer by AMAX to acquire Rosario on the basis of $55 U.S. a share. That offer was withdrawn after Hudson Bay Mining made its bid.

Keith Tayor, senior vice-president nf administration for Hudson Bay Mining, said in an interview the company decided to sell its shares after it was informed Friday by AMAX that the U.S. company had bought about 28 per cent of Rosario's shares on the New York Stock Exchange in the time since Hudson Bay Mining made its offer.

Taylor said, "AMAX acquired those shares at higher prices than we had offered to pay."

Hudson Bay Mining was unable to counteract the move by AMAX because U.S. regulations prevented the Canadian company from buying Rosario's shares on the market, Taylor said.

The Federal Trade Commission, the U.S. anti-trust authority, asked Hudson Bay Mining on Jan. 25 to supply more information.

Company reports

National Steel

National Steel Corp. has become the second major U.S. steelmaker to report lower profits for the final three months of 1979.

National Steel, based in Pittsburgh, said its 1979 fourth quarter profits totalled $21.3 million, down 44 per cent from the same period in 1978. Sales were unchanged at $1 billion.

Earnings for the year rose 12.5 per cent, to $126.5 million and sales 14 per cent, to $4.32 billion.

American Can

American Can Co. reports a profit increase of about 6.4 per cent for 1979 as its revenues climbed 13 per cent, from $3.98 billion in 1978 to $4.515 billion.

Earnings for 1979 were $127.3 million, compared with $119.6 million during 1978, American Can reported.

However, fourth-quarter profits fell 14.7 per cent to $24.4 million from $28.6 million in the 1978 period.

Per-share earnings for 1979 were $6.44, compared with $6.05 a share in 1978. Fourth-quarter earnings were $1.23 a share, down from $1.44 a share in 1978.

Stelco

The Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. of Toronto predicts positive elements for 1980 following record high earnings in 1979.

The company reported net income for 1979 of $156.9 million or $5.74 a share, compared with $111.9 million or $4.07 a share in 1978.

Sales were a record $2.09 billion, up from $1.78 billion the previous year. Stelco said sustained demand from major domestic steel users contributed to the gain, as well as higher prices in response to increased costs.

Production of raw steel was also a record, at 5.86 million tons compared with 5.53 million tons in 1978.

Tembec

Tembec Inc., a worker co-operative in Temiscamingue, Que., had net earnings of $5.4 million for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1979, based on sales of $74.5 million, the company has reported.

Tembec chairman George S. Petty said the figures represented a significant improvement in demand and a substantial increase in sales of special chemical pulps produced by the company. Further improvements were expected in both sales and earnings in 1980, he said.

Xerox

Xerox Corp., a major office equipment supplier, has reported a 14-per-cent increase in fourth-quarter earnings and an 18-per-cent gain for all of 1979.

Xerox said earnings benefited from continued growth in sales and leasing of copier, duplicators and other office equipment and supplies.

The company, based in Stamford, Conn., said earnings in the final quarter came to $127.8 million, or $1.52 a share, a record for the period. That compared to $111.8 million or $1.33 a share a year earlier.

Revenue during the three months ended Dec. 31 came to $1.877 billion, up 18 per cent from $1.596 billion a year earlier.

For 1979, earnings were $563.1 million, or $6.69 a share, on revenue of $7.02 billion. In 1978, excluding extraordinary earnings of $12 million, net profits came to $476.5 million, or $5.67 a share, on revenue of $6.033 billion.

Bell Canada

Bell Canada says labor problems are to blame for poor fourth quarter profits and a lacklustre performance in 1979.

Bell has reported a profit for 1979 of $433.2 million or $2.64 a share, compared with a final profit (including extraordinary items) of $395.1 million or $2.67 a share in 1978.

Oak Bay trips Vikes

University of Victoria Vikings missed a golden opportunity to move into a tie for the lead Sunday in the first division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League.

First-place Victoria West did all the scoring while playing to a 1-1 deadlock with Gorge at Hampton Park and Vikings remained a tie for second place with Victoria Athletics, two points behind the Wests, after dropping a 2-1 decision to Oak Bay at UVic.

In other matches, Nanaimo blanked Meston's Auto Body 6-0 at Heywood Avenue Park and Cosmopolitan Royals edged Powell River Villas 2-1 in Powell River.

On Saturday, Athletics shut out Castaways 4-0 at Royal Athletic Park.

Dan Henry opened scoring for Vic West by heading in a pass from Frank Woods at 41 minutes. Victoria West defender Steve Moss tried to clear the ball at 65 minutes but the ball bounced off clubmate Roy Francis and into the net for the Gorge goal.

Bob Dlamini intercepted a back pass and scored at 31 minutes to give Vikings the lead but Mike Sails equalized for Oak Bay from a scramble at 47 minutes. Jim Hunter cut in from the right side and blasted in a shot from 22 yards out for the winner at 70 minutes.

Dan Hood scored three goals for Nanaimo at 22, 35 and 62 minutes and Don Attig counted two at 17 and 76 minutes. Attig's double moved him back into a tie for the scoring lead with Dave McCaig of Athletics, each with 11 goals.

Brian Barraclough scored the other Nanaimo marker at 70 minutes. Midfielder Ray Telford, who is also the playing-coach, and Ike MacKay came up with outstanding efforts and goalie Don Marshall picked up the shutout.

On Saturday, McCaig and Gil Winley each scored twice for Athletics during the first half.

Two straight for England

Times News Services

England produced some of its finest rugby for years to beat France 17-13 Saturday — its first win in Paris since 1964 — and consolidate its lead in the five-nation Rugby Union championship.

Ireland also came up with a sharp performance. Playing in Dublin, the Irish trailed by nine points after just eight minutes but rallied to defeat Scotland 22-15.

The English forwards, who provided the platform in the 24-9 win over Ireland two weeks ago, again excelled and ran the French defence into the ground.

Question of freedom?

DETROIT (AP) — The National Hockey League, taking a two-day break from the longest regular season of its history, was to combine the business of negotiation with the pleasure of the recess prior to its 32nd all-star game Tuesday night.

The league's players and owners, still seeking a compromise on the controversial issue of free agency, were to meet individually today to map strategy for the latest in a lengthening series of discussions on the matter. The groups will meet Tuesday, before the Prince of Wales Conference stars go after their fifth consecutive triumph over the Campbell Conference.

"Any hockey player who loves his game and has common sense recognizes there has to be compensation," says Ted Lindsay, general manager of Detroit Red Wings.

"I think a guy should have the opportunity to do what he wants to do," counters Red Wings' left winger Errol Thompson.

The current system calls for a team losing a free agent to be compensated with cash, draft choices, players — or any combination of the three — from the acquiring team. If the clubs cannot agree on the combination, an arbitrator decides the transaction.

The players feel this system limits their movement, for many general managers will not sign a star as a free agent unless they know the exact price they'll have to pay. Team operators insist that if there were no system of compensation, the rich teams will buy all the top athletes.

"You'll lose a lot of teams in this league awful quick and a lot of guys will lose jobs because they won't have anyone to play with," says Emile Francis, president of St. Louis Blues. "You've seen what's happened in baseball (which has no compensation provision), but they generate a lot more revenue than we do through their TV contract."

"You can't have guys bouncing around," says Lindsay. "Freedom is a great thing, but you've got to have responsibility before you have freedom."

A proposed settlement would limit compensation to cash and/or draft choices, thus keeping a team from possibly losing one of its cornerstone athletes in a compensation arbitration.

Another proposal has compensation set under the current system for players making more than $150,000, with a schedule of draft choices as compensation for free agents, depending on their salaries if less than $150,000.

The players also were to discuss the future of Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players' Association.

Defenceman Mike Milbury of Boston Bruins, claiming Eagleson cannot devote his full attention to the NHLPA because of other duties as representative of some 100 players and his involvement in international hockey, is polling players to determine whether Eagleson should be replaced with a full-time executive director.

Once the talking stops and the playing starts, more than 19,000 fans are expected to turn out at the almost-completed Joe Louis Arena for the all-star game.

Flyers' gamble shocks Bruins, extends streak

By The Canadian Press

Philadelphia Flyers pulled their goaltender and scored — not once but twice — to salvage a tie Sunday from what had appeared to be certain defeat at the hands of Boston Bruins.

The Bruins, all set to add two points to the win column before the Flyers' miracle finish in the last minute of play, were shaking their heads at the 3-3 result on the scoreboard as they trudged off to their dressing room at the conclusion of the National Hockey League game.

"Anytime we can score two goals like that against Boston, then you know somebody up there must like us," said the Flyers' Bob Kelly.

Boston held a 2-0 lead after 40 minutes on goals by Dick Redmond and Brad Park. Reg Leach finally got a puck past Gerry Cheevers to draw the Flyers close early in the final period, but Boston regained a two-goal lead when Stan Jonathan beat Philadelphia goaltender Phil Myre for his 18th of the season.

Then, with time running out, Philadelphia coach Pat Quinn called Myre to the bench and sent out a sixth attacker.

Leach's second goal of the game and 35th of the season came from a scramble to the left of Cheevers with 49 seconds left. Quinn then called a time out to plot strategy. Asked later what was said, Quinn replied, "I said a little prayer."

As the seconds ticked away, the Flyers got the puck back into the Boston end of the Spectrum and, again, it was Leach looking for another goal. His hard shot hit Cheevers in the chest and the home-town crowd went wild when Rick MacLeish lifted the rebound into the top of the Bruins' net with 16 seconds remaining.

The tie enabled the Flyers, unbeaten in 26 games in the Spectrum this season, to stretch their latest undefeated streak to 11 games. The Flyers had a record 35-game undefeated streak earlier this season.

Elsewhere Sunday, the Nordiques defeated New York Rangers 5-4 in Quebec, the Oilers downed Los Angeles Kings 5-3 in Edmonton, the Sabres blanked Vancouver Canucks 3-0 in Buffalo, the Black Hawks defeated the Maple Leafs 4-2 in Chicago for their second win in two nights over Toronto, Hartford Whalers dumped New York Islanders 5-3, Minnesota North Stars defeated Colorado Rockies 6-2 and Detroit Red Wings, the only home team to lose, dropped a 4-3 decision to St. Louis Blues.

Buffalo goaltender Bob Sauve, who entered the game with a sparkling goals against average of 2.56, got the shutout over Vancouver. The Canucks, who won their first game in 12 on Saturday in Minnesota, suffered their 13th loss in their last 16 road games.

Put hockey sticks on top shelf and haul out the baseball gear

By WILL GRIMSLEY
The Associated Press

A message to mothers: store Johnny's tennis racket and golf clubs, put his basketball on the top shelf and toss his football in a trunk. You can do the same with the soccer ball and hockey stick.

If you want Johnny to be a rich sports superstar, haul out the dusty baseball bat and glove. Baseball is no longer corner lots, apple pie and Chevrolet. It's strictly Wall Street — the aristocrat of bigtime professional sports.

In four years, thanks to free agency and multimillion-dollar contracts for the likes of Dave Parker, Pete Rose, Rod Carew, Nolan Ryan and Co., baseball has zoomed to the top of sports' gold dust pile.

The average salary of the major league ballplayer is $120,000 compared with $48,000 in 1976 — almost tripled. The National Football League average, meanwhile, is up to only $68,893 from $42,000 four years ago.

Pro basketball has lost its old No.1 spot although, with smaller squads and high-priced talent such as rookie Larry Bird, Julius Erving, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Artis Gilmore, the NBA maintains an average of $110,000. The National Hockey League norm is $102,000 with a pair of transplanted Swedes on the New York Rangers, Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nillson, highest paid at a reported $450,000 each.

Pro golfers and tennis players, independent operators, hold their own at the pay window but don't match baseball's over-all affluence. Of 279 golfers listed on the PGA tour, only 35 were above $100,000 last year with Tom Watson the leader at $462,636. Tennis is lop-sided. Bjorn Borg and John McEnroe cashed cheques exceeding $1 million but only 32 of 110 players reached $100,000.

For a shot at the big bucks, you can't beat baseball.

Cats reap benefits from rookie's shift

By ERNIE FEDORUK

If Victoria Cougars are going to wind up with an edge over Portland Winter Hawks in their stirring struggle for the Western Division lead in the Western Hockey League, the difference may come from Grant Rezansoff and his new position.

For three games now, the rookie centre has found himself between Bob Jansch and Brad Palmer.

And coach Jack Shupe of the Cougars has found himself a line that is adding greater depth on offense.

Rezansoff scored two goals and Palmer one Saturday night to help Cougars to a 6-3 victory over Portland before 5,042 fans, a record for a league game at Memorial Arena.

Rezansoff has scored three goals and Palmer four in their three games since Shupe juggled lines. Rezansoff scored only 10 in his first 41 outings.

Apart from production figures, the good sign for the Cougars has been the line's effectiveness. It's always dangerous and dominating.

Palmer, for one, likes playing with Rezansoff. "He's got a lot of confidence for a rookie," said Palmer.

"Rezansoff knows what to do with the puck," says Shupe, "and he's going to get better and better."

The line of Barry Pederson (his 39th), Greg Adams (his 41st and 42nd) and Bud McCarthy (two assists) accounted for Victoria's other goals but it was a turnabout in forechecking, by all lines, that enabled the Cougars to take charge after a scoreless first period.

The first period was scoreless only because of another brilliant display by Victoria goaltender Grant Fuhr and an equally-solid effort by Portland's Darrell May. Then the Cougars slipped ahead 2-0 and broke away for good with three goals within 92 seconds at the start of the third period.

Thus the Cougars and Hawks split a four-game, mid-season series that attracted a record 25,053 fans, including 9,434 for the two games in Victoria.

Cougars now have a 5-4 edge in the 12-game series with Portland. The remainder of the series will be played in Portland Feb. 10 and March 19 and in Victoria March 11.

Saturday's victory moved the Cougars one point ahead of Portland but the Winter Hawks reclaimed the lead Sunday, defeating the stubborn Bruins 8-5 in New Westminster.

In other games, Calgary Wranglers scored all their goals on the power-play as they defeated Brandon Wheat Kings 5-4; Doug Wickenheiser scored twice to raise his league-leading goal total to 65 and lead Regina Pats to a 4-1 win over Seattle Breakers, and Billings Bighorns registered their first win of the season over Lethbridge Broncos, dumping their hosts 5-2.

Just like vacation in his kind of game

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — George Gervin had a good time, on and off the court.

When the 6-foot-7 San Antonio Spurs guard came to Washington for the 30th annual National Basketball Association all-star game, he compared it with being on vacation.

And, he didn't change his mind after scoring 34 points to lead the East to a 144-136 overtime victory over the West on Sunday, a performance that earned him most-valuable-player honors.

"It was a very competitive game and there was a lot of pride out there," Gervin said. "But I still had a good time."

The two squads put on an entertaining show for the sellout crowd of 19,035 in Capital Centre and a North American television audience, with the usual all-star Game moves, passes and dunks . . . and a general lack of defence.

"It was my kind of game," said Gervin, who is going for his third consecutive NBA scoring title as the chief gunner of the Spurs. "What did we score — 144 points? It sounds like the Spurs. No defence, all offence."

Going to a passing game worked for the East in the second half. Just as that strategy worked, so did a move by coach Lenny Wilkens of the West when he used centres Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles and Jack Sikma of his own Seattle team at the same time in the fourth period.

Slowly, the 17-point deficit evaporated, and the West pulled even for the first time at 122 on one of the seven second-half field goals by Paul Westphal of Phoenix.

Another basket by Westphal, who scored 21 points, tied the regulation game at 128-128 with 17 seconds left and it went into overtime after the East's Larry Bird missed a jumper at the buzzer.

Bird, Boston's fine rookie, had only two points until then. But he scored five in overtime and recorded his seventh assist on a spectacular slap of a rebound directly into Gervin's hands for the final field goal of the game.

Gervin made 14 of 26 shots, and was credited with 10 rebounds, three assists and three steals. Eddie Johnson of Atlanta, the East's other starting guard, had 22 points and seven assists.

Sudbury swimmer beats ranked Soviets

AMERSFOORT, Netherlands (CP) — Alex Baumann, 15, of Sudbury, whipped two world-ranked Soviet swimmers Sunday en route to a gold medal in the men's 400-metre individual medley at the 24-country Speedo swim meet.

Baumann's time of four minutes, 31.12 seconds left him six-hundredths of a second in front of Sergei Fesenko with another Russian, Alexander Siderenko, in third place. Fesenko was ranked No. 2 in the event in the world last year.

It was Baumann's fourth medal of the meet. The Canadian had a personal best time of 4:03.44 while finishing third Saturday in the 400 freestyle to two Soviet entrants, Vladimir Salnikov (3:57.54) and Alexander Chaev.

Holmes wants all to know that he's world champion

Times News Services

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes wants the world to realize he's the heavyweight boxing champion, a tough fistic public relations job since Muhammad Ali ruled the sport for so long.

"John Tate just has a piece of the title that I deserve," said Holmes, 30, on Sunday after stopping Italy's Lorenzo Zanon in the sixth round of their scheduled 15-round bout at las Vegas for the World Boxing Council heavyweight title.

Tate holds the World Boxing Association part of the title having won an elimination series following the retirement of Ali.

"Tate would be just another opponent for me," said Holmes, of Easton, Pa. "He doesn't rate to be called champion."

Zanon became the fifth challenger to fall by knockout to Holmes, who won the WBC version by outpointing Ken Norton at the Caesars Palace Sports Pavilion, where Zanon was stopped by a left-right combination, the latter doing the big damage.

Zanon, 28, and weighing 215 pounds, used the full ring in trying to avoid Holmes and actually won the third round. But he went down twice in the fourth and was given a standing eight-count respite in the same stanza by referee Ray Solis of Mexico City, who apparently didn't know you could not legally do that in Nevada.

But Solis ended the fight at 2:39 of the sixth after the right hand shot put the challenger down. Zanon was up by the count of eight but beaten and wobbly.

"Zanon was a good stepping stone toward Tate," said the unmarked Holmes, who put his record at 33-0 and earned $600,000 with his 24th kayo. "I feel I don't have to fight anybody to prove I'm the undisputed champion of the world."

Zanon's record went to 25-5-2 as he fought for $125,000 and simply did not have the artillery to stand off the champion.

Neither did Ruben Valdez of Colombia in his WBC title shot against swift-hitting super bantamweight champion Wilfredo Gomez of Puerto Rico in their fight for the 122-pound crown Sunday.

Gomez won when Valdez "felt so bad" that he couldn't come out for the seventh round and the fight went into the records as a TKO in six.

Gomez had hoped to fight Danny Lopez for the WBC featherweight championship with million dollar purses, but the latter lost to Salvador Sanchez on Saturday and out the window went the big money.

Gomez is now 29-0-1 while Valdez dropped to 43-6-1. Gomez became the first pro champion ever to record 11 straight knockout victories in championship fights. All 29 of his victories have come by knockout.

Lopez lost his title at Phoenix, where Salvador Sanchez scored a bloody 13th-round technical knockout.

Sanchez, of Mexico City, was far ahead on the cards of all three judges when referee Waldemar Schmidt stopped the bout 51 seconds into the 13th round.

Horrigan earns coast crown

Tim Horrigan of Victoria won the Pacific Coast Curling Association championship by inches Sunday, going undefeated in the three-day, triple-knockout tournament at New Westminster.

Horrigan, supported by Lowell Goulden, Kelly Horrigan and Dave Smith, downed Gary Sigurdson of Vancouver 7-5 Sunday for the title and the first seeding in the B.C. championship here next weekend.

Also qualifying for the B.C. championship was defending provincial champion Glen Pierce of Vancouver, Sigurdson and Rick Pughe of New Westminster.

Horrigan, who won four games, drew to the four-foot circle with his last rock, cutting out a Sigursdon stone by a matter of inches to win.

"I was just about totally relaxed," said Horrigan, 28, who was unsuccessful in two previous PCCA championship appearances.

"I felt the importance of it all but I wasn't really excited out there. I guess you have to learn how to lose before you can win."

In play Sunday, Pierce edged Wayne Frank of Maple Ridge 10-9 in an extra end, while Pughe demolished Wayne Statton of Chilliwack 10-4 in six ends.

Brad Clarke of Victoria and Barry Naimark of Victoria were eliminated Saturday. Pierce quashed Victoria's hopes of a second entry in the Consols when he defeated the Clarke foursome 7-1. The Victorians had beaten Pughe 7-2 and lost 8-5 to Sigurdson earlier.

At Vancouver, Linda Moore of North Vancouver remained the only undefeated skip after two days of the B.C. women's curling championship.

Moore improved her record to 3-0 Sunday with a 9-4 win over Fort St. John's June Godberson and an 8-2 victory against Ruby Niemeyer of Victoria. Niemeyer has a 1-3 won-lost record.

Godberson, who won her two games Saturday, also lost 9-6 to Eve Skakun of Kamloops. New Westminster's Joan Dexter drew for two in the 10th end and stole one in an extra end for a 6-5 win over Cranbrook's Carol Clinck.

Dexter, who also beat Niemeyer 9-2, is second with a 3-1 record, while Clinck is tied with Godberson at 2-2.

Barbara Parker of Comox boosted her mark to 2-1 with a 5-3 win over Prince George's Leila Johnston.

The five-day, nine-rink playdown ends Wednesday with the winner representing B.C. at the Lassie Canadian championship in Edmonton Feb. 23 to March 1.

Overshadowed Austin finally gets to shine

Times News Services

Chris Evert Lloyd left early, Andrea Jaeger went back to school and Tracy Austin went home with the money.

Austin, 17, seeded second in a $150,000 women's professional tennis tournament at Seattle, defeated Virginia Wade of Britain 6-2, 7-6 Sunday to take home the $30,000 first prize.

Austin had been overshadowed earlier in the week by the play of Jaeger, 14, who posted two upset victories before finally bowing to Austin in the semi-finals, and Evert Lloyd, who said she was leaving the tour.

But Austin, the No. 2-ranked player in the world behind Martina Navratilova, lost only one set during the tournament and polished off Wade in two hours.

In the doubles final, Rosie Casals and Wendy Turnbull of Australia defeated Wade and Greer Stevens of South Africa 6-4, 2-6, 7-5.

In Richmond, Va., top-seeded John McEnroe needed only 55 minutes for a 6-1, 6-2 victory over fellow-American Roscoe Tanner, the No. 2 seed, in the championship match of the $175,000 Richmond Classic. The 20-year-old McEnroe played his style of serve-and-volley tennis to virtual perfection in earning $30,200.

And in Puerto Rico, top-seeded Raul Ramirez of Mexico beat Australian Phil Dent, 6-3, 6-2, in the finals of the $75,000 San Juan tournament. Ramirez won $13,125.

In the doubles finals, Australians Paul Kronk and John McNamee downed Robert Frogolo and Mark Turpin of the U.S. 7-6, 6-3 to split $3,900.

Burns didn't lose this one

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — It was a long time coming, this victory for George Burns in the Bing Crosby National pro-am golf tournament.

He had numerous third-round leads in the four previous years he'd toiled on the Professional Golfers' Association tour. He had led at times in the last round, but winning always got away.

But it was a victory, with partner Ben Crenshaw, in the national team championship last fall that set up this one, Burns said after his closing 69 Sunday.

"I just wasn't ready to win before," he said. "It was a combination of everything. I wasn't comfortable out there. I wasn't comfortable with my swing. It was a matter of nerves, not being sure of myself.

"You have to pay your dues out here before you're ready to win.

"I have to thank Ben," he said. "Winning with him in the team (championship) was a great stepping stone for me. Ben showed me how to win. I looked at his easy mannerisms and I learned."

Burns, who joined the pro tour in 1976 with gaudy amateur credentials, collected his first official tour title with a 280 total, eight strokes under par.

He won by a single stroke, with the clincher a 45-foot birdie putt from the shadow of the grove of trees that loom over the 16th green. And he won in the intense pressure generated by a multi-player scramble down the stretch. Six men either led or shared the lead at one time, and a total of 16 were within three shots of the lead with eight holes to play.

Dan Halldorson of Shilo, Man., shot a final-round 73 for 289 and won $1,736, while Jim Nelford of Burnaby was another two strokes back after shooting a 72. He collected $1,200.

Dryden started the current campaign in the Edmonton net but retired Dec. 22 to devote his full attention to coaching and scouting.

Dryden joins Vancouver columnist-broadcaster Jim Taylor, Indianapolis 500 starter Pat Vidan and a representative of the North American Soccer League champion Vancouver Whitecaps on the list of speakers.

Post finishes second

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Veteran JoAnne Carner fired a par 73, her highest score of the week, but still managed to score a two-stroke victory Sunday in the $100,000 opening tournament for the Ladies Professional Golf Association.

Carner, a 40-year-old who was sidelined four months last year with tendinitis in her right wrist, was able to hold off Canada's female athlete of the year, Sandra Post. Carner finished with 72-hole total of 282.

The 29-year-old Post also finished with a 73 for a 284 total. Amy Alcott, Beth Daniel, Jane Blalock and Jerilyn Britz tied for third at 286.

Donna Horton White, like Carner a former Women's Amateur champion, had Sunday's low score with a four-under 69 that included four birdies.

Can halt baldness Finnish scientists say

LONDON — Two Finnish scientists said they have developed a scalp treatment that can halt baldness and even start new hair growing in many cases.

The scientists, who are putting the treatment on sale in the form of a solution, say that among volunteers who applied it to their scalp for 28 weeks, hair growth resumed in 60 per cent of the cases and hair loss decreased within four weeks.

The claim, however, was greeted with initial reservation by some medical experts.

The product contains a synthetic detergent, which clears away dead hairs and other dirt clogging the follicles — the tiny sacs in which hair grows.

Another ingredient, a compound, then sets in motion a process which allegedly results in the growth of new hair.

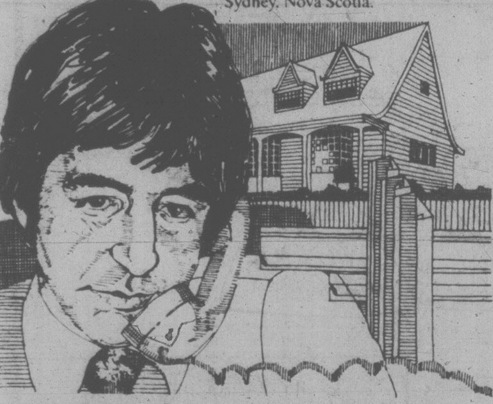
On the move with RoyNat.

J. David MacDonald, President,
Modern Aluminum Products Ltd.,
Sydney, Nova Scotia.



"RoyNat made the acquisition possible."

"I began practicing law in Toronto in 1971, and was still at it in Sydney in 1977-78 when I found out Modern Aluminum Products was for sale. It was a clean little company, making storm windows and doors and providing siding and insulation services. I didn't have any money, but I wanted that company. I wanted to get into my own business.

"I caught the next plane to Toronto to raise acquisition funds. Through my legal contacts I got to the sources quickly, but they weren't interested in the Maritimes. No go!

"Time was short. I had 30 days to raise the money. A chartered accountant I worked with suggested RoyNat.

"They were there within hours. They analyzed the deal, the business – and me. I got the go-ahead, and bought the company. It was incredible! Touch and go!

"Without RoyNat, the acquisition would have been impossible. No doubt about it."

Ex-ski champ takes slalom

WINTER PARK, Colo. (AP) — Hank Kashiwa, former world pro skiing champion, was back on the winner's stand for the first time in five years Sunday when he won the slalom event in the $50,000 First of Denver Cup.

Kashiwa's win caps five years of coming back from a 1976 knee injury that doctors thought would bother him the rest of his life.

In Sunday's slalom, Kashiwa defeated Swiss pro Manfred Jakober, newcomer Othmar Kirchmair of Austria and third-ranked Hans Hinterseer of Austria before beating newcomer Leif Agren of Sweden in the finals.

Last-end loss for Scotland

MELBOURNE (Reuter) — Hong Kong won the gold medal in the fours at the world lawn bowling championships by edging Scotland, its closest challenger, on the last end.

Hong Kong beat the Scottish four 18-17 after going into the last end of the 19th and final series trailing 17-16.

Scotland took the silver medal with New Zealand third. Australia was fourth and Wales fifth.

Opening lead — four of diamonds.

You sometimes have to stop in the middle of the play and ask yourself: "What's going on around here?" If you don't exhibit this kind of curiosity from time to time, you will occasionally miss an opportunity to show everyone that you know what the game is all about.

Consider this deal which Manuel Antunes, Portuguese star, played in the European championship. He led a diamond against three notrump. South won East's ten with the king, cashed the ace of spades, and led a low heart towards dummy.

Antunes followed low and dummy won the heart with the king. Declarer now played a spade from dummy, winning the trick with the jack, and then led the five of hearts towards dummy's J-6.

It was at this point that Antunes stopped to ask himself what declarer was doing. By now it was clear that South had five spade tricks whenever he chose to take them, two diamond tricks and also two heart tricks if Antunes followed low on the second round of hearts. (It was virtually certain that South had the queen of hearts, judging from his method of play.)

Accordingly, Antunes went up with the ace of hearts. He had concluded that the only conceivable way to beat the contract was to attack declarer in his only possible weak spot, clubs. Moreover, Antunes also solved the problem of which club to lead from his K-J-5. He led the jack of clubs!

This proved to be the killing play. It did not matter whether declarer covered the jack with dummy's queen or ducked. Either way, East-West would score four club tricks in succession. But if Antunes had led either the king or five of clubs, South would have made the contract with correct play in the club suit.

UVic clubs extend skeins

Times News Services

University of Victoria's teams continue to steamroll over Canada West University Athletic Association basketball rivals.

The Vikings came up with the necessary adjustments Saturday, after a mediocre but winning effort Friday, and defeated Alberta Golden Bears 81-73 in men's action at Edmonton. It was UVic's 12th straight victory in CWUAA competition.

The unbeaten Vikettes, meanwhile, ran their record to 14-0 in CWUAA women's play, and 29-0 over-all, by shaking off an early fright to defeat Alberta Pandas 65-53.

The Ken Shields-coached Vikings out-rebounded Bears 30-15 and hit on a solid 52 per cent of their shots from the field to convincingly handle the Alberta team that forced UVic to struggle the previous night.

Billy Loos scored 24 points while Reni Dolcetti rammed in 19 and hauled in 14 rebounds to spark the Vikes. Ted Anderson added 17 points for Victoria.

Vikettes had problems with turnovers (committing 24 to Pandas' 18) and shooting (39 per cent to Alberta's 38), but "had it" when it counted. Trailing 34-25 at the half, Vikettes turned things around with a highly-effective zone press.

Offensively, Carol Turney-Loos (19), Sandy Lewis (14), Luanne Hebb (10) and Cindy Smith (10) paced Vikettes. Lewis also sparkled on the boards by picking off 11 rebounds.

Jazz funeral given 'Fess

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Fancy umbrellas swayed to a trumpet's slow wail Saturday as New Orleans musicians honored with a jazz funeral Henry Roeland Byrd, known professionally as Professor Longhair, the pianist who often told audiences he invented rock 'n roll.

Police estimated that 2,000 to 3,000 mourners, fans, and people who just wanted to see a jazz funeral braved cold winds to jam the inner-city street outside the funeral home where services were held.

"He's trying to go to heaven. Let him go!" shouted one man as the band played In the Sweet Bye and Bye.

"I'm nobody," he said, when asked his name. "I'm just here to see that 'Fess goes home."

'Fess, or the 'Fessor, was born Henry Roeland Byrd. His style of hard-banging piano pulled together the rhythms of Afro and Caribbean music with the traditional sounds of New Orleans jazz.

Many people said it was the invention of rock 'n roll, and the 'Fessor never denied it.

"He was in a very select group of true musical geniuses," Jerry Wexler, a Warner Bros. Record Co. executive and one of the pioneer producers of rhythm and blues recordings in the United States, told mourners at a wake Friday night.

"There are very few people in the world — and all of them are from New Orleans — who can play the kind of music that Longhair made famous. He will be sorely missed by me personally and by thousands of lovers all over the world of the most beautiful and infectious music ever made."

Any pertinent information should be forwarded to the C.R.T.C., Ottawa, Ontario, K1N 0N2, or telephone 613-997-0313.

Gun-toting 'drunks' threaten Sakharov

MOSCOW (UPI) — Dissident leader Andrei Sakharov said in a document released today said his life had been threatened by two gun-carrying "drunks" and Soviet authorities had warned him to stop his dissident activity or he would be sent even farther into exile.

Sakharov, who was banished two weeks ago to the city of Gorky 250 miles east of Moscow, also said he told authorities he refused to abide by their exile restrictions and demanded to be brought to trial.

The document was released by Sakharov's wife, Yelena Bonner, who so far is not under the restrictions that prohibit Sakharov from leaving Gorky.

Sakharov, 58, said two workers, "ostenisbly drunk", came to his Gorky apartment last Monday despite the presence of a full-time surveillance team that has stopped visitors in the past.

"They were toying with a pistol," the document said. "The guy who was holding the gun boasted that he was a very good shot. They threatened to stage another Afghanistan in our apartment and destroy us."

Sakharov said the pair also warned of further reprisals.

"They told us not to hold any hope about staying here (in Gorky) long, because a space has already been reserved for them at an insane asylum nearby."

Sakharov said he was summoned to the Gorky prosecutor's office Sunday and told he was violating the restrictions of his exile by having contact with foreigners, even through a second party.

"The deputy prosecutor made it explicitly clear that if I persist in violating the terms of the exile, I will be deported to another place and that sanctions will be taken against my wife as well."

Dissident criticized

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet dissident writer who last week joined a protest against the Kremlin's decision to banish activist leader Andrei Sakharov from Moscow has been branded "an enemy of the socialist system" by a Communist party newspaper.

The attack against Lev Kopelev came Sunday in the newspaper Sovyetskaya Rossiya. It did not say whether any action will be taken against the 68-year-old writer, who has been widely published in the United States and West Germany.

It's an emotional roller-coaster

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Normally one wouldn't think of going to the theatre to experience a ride on a roller-coaster.

But that is the best way to describe the reaction of audiences currently visiting Ira Levin's Deathtrap at McPherson Playhouse.

Laughter all the way punctuated by gasps and shrieks.

In fact, the concerted shout-shriek of a full house at two climax points on opening night was a hair-raising new experience for this reviewer.

I don't think I have ever enjoyed a case of jangled nerves so much.

It would be contrary to all theatre protocol to give away the plot of Bastion Theatre's latest winner. For a winner it will be, no doubt of that, with its star performances by Douglas Rain and Glenn MacDonald and its exceptional theatrical twists. In one sense it is a play within a play as wrung-out thriller playwright Sidney Bruhl is confronted in Act I scene 1, with an obvious brilliant coup by a student from one of his summer seminars — or so it seems until . . . but no more!

It must be sufficient to say that Sidney (Douglas Rain), his wife Myra (Anna Hagan) and Clifford Anderson, the budding playwright (MacDonald) are involved in a fiendishly bizarre plot that recoils in entirely unexpected ways for all concerned, including the audience.

Like many thriller plots it will not bear too close an analysis but the name of the game is fun and excitement and to hell with dissection.

Its most obvious flaw is a final scene that is like an after-thought on Levin's part. It does nothing for the play but smudge the effect of the final climax; in other words, an anti-climax.

Directed by Ed Stephenson with an excellent set design by Ed Kotanen, the five-member ensemble responds well to the powerful presence of Rain, a prominent actor on both sides of the Atlantic and of the border.

Rain invests the role of Bruhl, the mayhem-minded author, with a fullness of dimension, a richness of detail and a strength of personality that is almost hypnotic. His timing is superb. His range, vocally and rhythmically, his attention to detail and use of pace provide a virtuoso performance in character projection.

MacDonald, who stepped into the role of the student, Anderson, virtually at the last moment after the actor originally cast was taken ill, plays mostly in duet with Rain and comes off extremely well, sustaining the brash insolence of the character with a sort of staccato bounding rhythm that makes an effective foil for Rain while creating a buoyant and believable character.

Helga Ten Dorp is a psychic neighbor possessed of powerful ESP. It's a parallel to the Madame Arcati role in Blithe Spirit, but not nearly as well written. Myra Benson, however, handles it with aplomb, milking its comedy and bringing to it as much conviction as is possible.

Anna Hagan's Myra Bruhl is the least impressive characterization in the ensemble, but then it is not a very rewarding part nor one that provides the actress with any opportunity for development.

Robin Marshall, on the other hand, in the small support role of Bruhl's lawyer friend, Porter Milgrim, gives a sharply individualized portrayal that is first rate in every way. It does leave you wishing for more of Porter Milgrim but the P.S. scene tacked on at the end does not fill the bill.

No one who loves to have their spine tingled should miss Deathtrap, which continues through Feb. 16.

Derailment probe has stormy start

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — An inquiry into the Mississauga train derailment had a stormy start today when a lawyer for CP Rail accused three regional policemen of harassment.

The lawyer, Norman Chalmers, said that three Peel Regional Police officers have been harassing CP Rail employees during their investigation into the Nov. 10 derailment of a CP Rail train carrying chlorine and propane gas that forced the evacuation of about 225,000 residents.

Chalmers said the three policemen — on loan from the force to help in the investigation — "harassed specific employees of CP Rail."

"This is not a CP inquiry," Chalmers said. He said that the policemen told several employees that "this is the last chance to change your statement."

"These people are not criminals," he said, adding that if the harassment continues CP Rail will "obtain whatever relief is available" from Mr. Justice Samuel Grange, an Ontario Supreme Court judge who is commissioner of the inquiry.

Steam train promo halted

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Royal Hudson steam train will not go on a promotional tour of the U.S. this year because the cost would be too high, John Plul, the provincial government's travel coordinator said Sunday.

He said the tourism ministry is looking at several alternative.

Plul said last year's promotional tour cost $300,000 and generated about $2 million in tourism revenue. A similar tour this year would cost twice as much, he said.

No surprises in energy policy

is not the end, but the beginning of B.C.'s energy policy.

"It serves as a framework for detailed initiatives to be developed over time as specific programs are introduced,"

R. E. Kadlec, president of Inland Natural Gas, agreed with the minister and said it "would have been very inappropriate, with the changing scene in energy, to come out with some very definitive scenarios on pricing and so on at this time."

He said his firm was encouraged by the policy and would announce later today its intention to apply to supply gas to Vancouver Island.

"Our company's posture in the market area will be far more aggressive now," he said, adding that his firm will try to supply urban areas which for economic reasons are not currently getting natural gas such as Litton, Boston Bar and Revelstoke.

Kadlec added that the new policy will "change the focus for our company and as a result we're encouraged."

Art Willms of Westcoast Transmission said the policy merely provides a framework "so we'll have to wait to see what type of policies are put into place to implement this general policy."

"I think it is a good start as an overall general guideline to the industry and the public as to where the government wants the energy development to take move," said Willms, "but until there are details, it is very hard to comment."

Charles Nash, B.C. Hydro general manager, noted that his firm is government controlled and it will be up to the government to say if B.C. Hydro will supply the Alcan smelters with power.

He said the change of regulatory bodies for Hydro rates — from cabinet to a utilities commission — is interesting.

"It's very welcome that the policy would provide for much better public understanding of the basis principles behind rates and their design and application.

Nash noted that Hydro is "a creature of the government."

Argentine horror story

LONDON (UPI) — Hundreds of men and women in Argentine concentration camps are tortured with electric prods and some are subjected to the "final decision" — being dropped unconcious from an airplane into the sea, two former inmates said today.

If the prisoners are Jewish, their torture also includes kneeling before a picture of Hitler or Mussolini, the two said in their chilling account of deprivation, torture and death published by Amnesty International.

The independent human rights organization, based in London, said it "spent months cross-checking" the story before releasing it.

The two men, Oscar Alfredo Gonzales, 29, a union activist, and Horacio Guillermo, 22, a student leader, said they escaped Feb. 18, 1979, while being taken to La Plata for interrogation. They said they spent 15 months in five different camps between them.

The men described their first camp, Club Atletico — the Athletic Club — in Buenos Aires, as a house of horrors where prisoners were taken to one of three "operating theatres" — torture chambers — for hours on end.

Sunday is run day for army of marathon hopefuls

Getting an army of 200 to 300 on the move every Sunday morning is no small challenge in logistics but organizers of the first annual Royal Victoria Marathon, sponsored by the Times and VI90, have the weekly training sessions at the YM-YWCA running smoothly. Runners head for the gym at 9:30 a.m., leaving shoes at the door (top left), then go through a series of stretching exercises (centre and bottom left). Divided into groups according to ability, they then hit the road for an hour around Beacon Hill Park-Dallas Road areas before returning to the Y for lectures and discussions on the art of long distance running. Aspirants come in all shapes and sizes, evident by the group (top right) being led by Alex Marshall of the Prairie Inn Hash House Harriers. Others like the chap (top centre) find the sessions a great way to give the family pooch some exercise. The sanctioned marathon, consisting of two circuits from Beacon Hill Park to Willows Beach and back, is designed to promote fitness through running. The idea is to complete the 26 miles, 385 yards regardless of time. Training sessions continue at the Y and the park each Sunday at 9:30 a.m. until race day Saturday, Sept. 20. (John McKay photos).

Minister 'negative' - Trident creditor

One of the creditors of Trident Aircraft has accused federal Small Business and Industry Minister Ron Huntington of turning his back on small business in Canada.

R.S. Summerfeldt, president of Project Recruiting Group of Toronto, said Huntington was motivated more by political reasons than business reasons in cancelling the government's agreement to provide a $4 million loan to the fledgling light plane manufacturer.

"For an individual representing small business, I believe you are an irresponsible person," Summmerfeldt wrote.

"You are negative to say the least, considering your function is to help small business and not hinder it."

Summerfeldt called small business "the very heart" of the Canadian economy and the base for the country's future.

"Considering big business is owned or controlled by foreign interests, every course of action available to the Canadian people should be pursued to support small business."

He said Trident owes his company $46,000, and the loss would put the company "in dire financial straits."

Summerfeldt said he had spent 19 years in the aircraft industry and felt Trident had good potential if only the government would lend its support and encouragement.

Hospital facilities seen key to medical school

Adequate hospital training facilities must be in place before a medical school can be established at the University of Victoria, a Victoria Medical Society spokesman said today.

Vice-president Dr. Michael Bassett said regional expansion and the operation of the new Helmcken Road will be the first step toward establishing a medical school at UVic.

He said four or five years ago the VMS approached the provincial government but the University of B.C. at that time wanted to increase its number of its medical students from 70 or 80 up to 100.

"Vancouver was given the priority and Victoria was put on hold," he said.

Bassett was responding to recent comments by Universities, Science and Technology Minister Pat McGeer that indifference on the part of the medical profession in Victoria is one of the reasons UVic does not have a medical school.

Bassett said a pediatric training program had been set up in Victoria but the facilities proved inadequate for the training of some 12 Royal Jubilee Hospital interns, another 10 interns from the Victoria General Hospital and 10 residents from UBC.

Once the new Helmcken Road hospital is established, Bassett said the first steps toward a medical school could be residencies in family practice, pediatrics and obstetrics at the new hospital.

"The hospital will become a referral centre for the whole island," he said.

He said such steps are necessary before a medical school can be planned.

"It costs $7,000 per year per student. You don't put a medical school in overnight."

Comments irk rights group

The Human Rights Commission has taken the Capital Region Board to task for not appointing a woman to its economic development commission.

In a prepared statement the commission said it feels comments made by board chairman Jim Campbell and Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier at a meeting last Thursday were discriminatory.

"It should not be necessary to remind the gentlemen of the board that women make up about 50 per cent of the population. They own property, pay taxes, and vote.

"Discrimination against them is forbidden by the Human Rights Code of B.C."

Howie's hustling with heart

Al Howie's at it again.

Howie cantered off from Victoria city hall this morning on his latest marathon run — a 225-kilometre jaunt to Courtenay — in a bid to raise funds for the B.C. Heart Foundation.

Howie, 34, hopes to reach the up-Island community around 9.30 a.m. Tuesday.

Pledges can be sent to the Heart Foundation office at 1008 Blanshard or phoned into 382-4035.

Howie carried greetings from Victoria Mayor Bill Tindall to Courtenay Mayor Robert McPhee.

Howie says he's running for the Heart Fund as a result of meeting three-year-old Jaryn Perkins, whose life was saved when the Heart Foundation arranged to fly him to Toronto for a heart operation.

Midnight run to Seattle in plans for new ferry

By MIKE HUGHES

Victorians may have the opportunity this summer to take a midnight cruise to Seattle.

The midnight run is included in a tentative schedule recommended by ferry officials and local businessmen who met Friday to discuss the replacement of the Princess Marguerite by the Queen of Prince Rupert.

In announcing the replacement Thursday, Finance Minister Hugh Curtis said that although the Prince Rupert has only about half the capacity of the 1,600-seat Marguerite, the new vessel will make two round trips a day instead of just one.

Ald. Bob Wright, who was at Friday's meeting attended by B.C. Ferry Corp. and B.C. Steamship Co. Ltd. officials, said today the tentative schedule calls for the Prince Rupert to leave Victoria at midnight and offload passengers about 6:30 a.m. in Seattle.

The vessel would then leave Seattle at about 7:30 a.m., arrive here about noon and leave again an hour later. The next trip from Seattle would be about 6 p.m. or 6:30 p.m. arriving in Victoria around 11 p.m., he said.

Brian Small, manager of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, said today the two round trips a day would open up whole new opportunities for Victoria and Seattle people.

He said Victorians would be able to spend a day in Seattle and return that night and those coming the other way will be able to spend 12 hours here rather than two or three hours when the Marguerite was only making the one run.

He added that if a hydrofoil service is set up to supplement the ferry run those who just want a quick trip between the two cities will also be taken care of.

The hydrofoil possibility was also discussed at Friday's meeting and Small said a report in Saturday's Times that Boeing had no jetfoils available is erroneous.

Small said he talked this morning with Robin Little, Boeing's general manager of marketing in Seattle, and was assured the company has a jetfoil available for lease right now.

Wright agreed with Small, saying there was no question but that a hydrofoil was available.

Rudy Stapes of Boeing's jetfoil division was quoted Saturday as saying the company has no jetfoils available immediately for charter or sale.

There is a private group in Victoria, including former B.C. cabinet minister Sam Bawlf, interested in providing a hydrofoil service and Little was in Victoria today to discuss the matter.

Meanwhile, the decision to take the Prince Rupert off the Vancouver-Island-Prince Rupert run has triggered angry reverberations up the B.C. coast.

The up-coast residents say the Prince Rupert's replacement, the Queen of Surrey, won't be refitted until June and the Prince Rupert will be taken off the run in early April.

Post-swim stroll brings frigid death

The sheriff's office in Flathead County, Mont., is investigating the death by freezing of a Victoria father of two who apparently wandered away from a ski resort's heated outdoor pool in below-zero weather last week.

Sheriff Al Rierson said the death of Robert Lineham, 36, is under investigation. His body was found Friday in the woods bordering the Big Mountain ski resort near Whitefish, Mont., but officials did not reveal the death until Sunday.

Rierson said Lineham went swimming Wednesday night, apparently became disoriented and wandered off. He was not reported missing until Friday, shortly before his body was found. Lineham was wearing only swimming trunks when he died.

The temperature was about -32 degrees Celsius when Lineham disappeared.

Rierson told the Times in a telephone interview this morning that authorities had not determined why the man wandered away.

The sheriff is awaiting the results of blood and urine tests to determine if an autospy is necessary.

Lineham was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken W. Lineham, 1345 Topaz. He is also survived by two children, Curtis, 10, and Nicole, 8.

Lineham had been active in real estate development, and his mother said he was an avid skier.

He had returned to Victoria from Europe just before Christmas, and then had gone to the Montana resort just before New Year's.

Mrs. Lineham said she and he husband were stunned by the news. They will fly to Montana today or tomorrow for funeral services and cremation.

White Cane week launched

It's White Cane Week across Canada and the blind and the people who work with them want everyone to realize just how precious sight is.

It's estimated that 2,600 Canadians lose their sight each year and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is sponsoring White Cane Week to make the public aware of safety concerns and of the needs of the blind.

Participants include the Canadian National Institute for the Blind (CNIB), the Canadian Council for the Blind (CCB) and Victoria's Out of Sight Club and the White Cane Club.

Lieut.-Gov. Henry Bell-Irving is involved, too. He presented Jennifer Belton, a Grade 5 student at Savory School, with an award for her poster marking White Cane Week.

The presentation to Jennifer, whose poster was judged best from the Vancouver Island district in a cross-Canada competition, was made today at Government House.

The CCB and the CNIB will jointly sponsor an open house from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday at the CNIB building, 1609 Blanshard.

Victoria riding candidates will speak on their party's policies in relation to the blind and the handicapped at the open house.

Not on voters' list? It's now or never

"I don't know what's happening. It seems as if the whole population has just woken up."

To the election official who asked to remain anonymous, the "whole population" is the Canadian electorate, and many of them are apparently just realizing that the deadline for being placed on the voters' list in urban ridings is 10 o'clock tonight.

That's an absolute, final, no-exceptions deadline.

The deadline for voters in rural ridings (and only 35 of Canada's 266 ridings are designated rural) was 10 p.m. last Wednesday, but a rural voter accompanied by a neighbor already on the list can be sworn in right up to and including election day.

But the urban voter who didn't get his card in the mail or who simply isn't on the list only has until tonight. The revisional officers are sitting until 6 p.m., breaking for supper until 7 p.m. and sitting until 10 p.m. and applicants must appear in person.

The Victoria returning office is at 1837 Fort Street, while the Esquimalt-Saanich office is in the Mackenzie Mall, 1545 Mackenzie Avenue.

The advance polls will be held between noon and 8 p.m. on Feb. 9, 11 and 12. In Esquimalt-Saanich, advance polls will be at the Garth Homer Centre, 813 Darwin, the Esquimalt Recreation Centre at 527 Fraser, and at Sanscha Hall in Sidney.

In Victoria, there is only one advance poll, and that's at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, 643 Broughton.

If you definitely can't get to the advance polls or to your regular polling station on election day Feb. 18, you can vote at the office of the returning officer, starting at noon today through Feb. 15, but excluding the days of the advance poll.

All you have to do is convince the returning officer you simply can't make it to the advance or regular polls.

For this special voting, the returning office is open from noon to 6 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

Gift of the gab, but he can't read

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Brad has been blessed with "the gift of gab, an ability he has exploited extensively. He had no choice — he is unable to read or write.

A society which has created an elaborate school system does not think to ask why a 26-year-old is unable to use language in all its forms. Reading and writing generally are taken for granted.

But statistics compiled by the Movement for Canadian Literacy show that five million adults in Canada today are either illiterate or functionally illiterate.

The organization defines an illiterate as anyone with less than a Grade 5 education.

Functional illiterates are persons with less than a Grade 9 education. While they are able to function in society, marry, hold a job and have a family, their lack of ability with the language limits their potential.

Brad, who asked that his surname not be used, is in the second category. He lives in the Barrie area, works in a factory and is married.

"I started school in a one-

How did he get through school?

"They kept putting me through because of my age and finally got me through Grade 8."

"I took a two-year occupations course in high school," Brad said, adding, "Nobody in my class could read."

Despite his perceptual handicap, Brad is determined to beat his illiteracy. Currently he is working with the Barrie Literacy Council, an organization that believes there is hope for illiterates.

The council trains tutors in a universal language system used to teach such people, then matches one tutor with one student. The two work together — usually in weekly sessions — through a series of notebooks beginning with the alphabet.

It can take up to two years before the student has completed the program. But that will only be the beginning for Brad.

"I'm going to take the course as far as I can go," he said. "Then I'll go to college for an upgrading course on language."

"I want to learn ... You've got to want to learn."

room school house," he said in an interview. "For my first three years there I was classified as retarded. ... I never learned to read.

"By the time I went to a larger school I was too far behind the others and the teacher didn't have time for me."

Brad has a perceptual problem. When reading he sees and absorbs a line but is often unable to remember the same words when they next appear. Always able to pass oral tests and work with his hands, he could not do written tests or read.

"I had no memory for the words, so after a period of time the teacher just assumed I was retarded because I couldn't grasp it ... I more or less just sat in the corner of the classroom for my first three years."

Brad's parents hired a tutor at one point, but could not afford the extra expense indefinitely. The school system had no programs and was unable to diagnose the problem.

Brad was labelled a "slow learner," and he acted accordingly.

Gardener's love given children

What does a master gardener do after he retires?

According to H. F. (Bert) Harp, no matter how great a love for flowers and plants, he doesn't very often go in for gardening.

Harp exemplifies this belief in his daily life.

Since coming to Victoria in 1973 he has done no gardening. Volunteer work has taken its place.

First with veterans in the Jubilee Hospital Memorial Pavilion and for the past five years with severely handicapped children in care at the Eric Martin Institute.

Recently those youngsters were moved to the Queen Alexandra Hospital for Children and Harp now spends several afternoons a week there.

He feeds, helps, comforts and in his own words, gives support and love, in a continuing effort to brighten the lives of these children.

Through this work he was chosen, one of a number of volunteers throughout British Columbia, for a provincial ministry of human resources Year of the Child citation.

These were presented by Lieutenant-Governor Bell-Irving at Government House in December.

Here let me make it clear that Harp's active years as a master gardener have not been dimmed by his present activities.

On Wednesday he leaves for Winnipeg where he will receive a Stevenson Memorial Award, given every five years or so by the Manitoba Horticultural Association to a person considered to have made the greatest contribution to horticulture in the three Prairie provinces.

Stevenson, came to the Prairies from Ontario in the 1870s and was successful in growing apples near Morden, Saskatchewan.

His efforts decided the Canadian government to establish an experimental farm near that town.

Bert Harp was born in 1904 in Dorset, England, where his father was a nursery and landscape gardener.

Later the family moved to South Wales and he was apprenticed for five years with a plant nursery in Cardiff.

He came to Canada in 1927 and in the next 43 years was engaged at various levels in commercial and research horticulture on the Prairies.

"My first year in this country I worked with the parks board in Saskatoon," he tells you.

"I left there to take charge of greenhouses at Brandon for the Patmore Company with the oldest established nurseries on the Prairies and where we went in mostly for hardy plants.

"After four years I took a position at Morden with the Manitoba Experimental Farm."

There he teamed up with William Godfrey, a skilled plantsman. Later he replaced Godfrey as head gardener, a position held until retirement in 1970, with only a brief out for a stint with the RCAF during the Second World War.

At the experimental farm he was active in a number of successful projects, among them a program of plant breeding — the development of new varieties by cross-pollination.

"On that program we worked chiefly with hardy roses and hardy chrysanthemums," he says, "and some of our introductions were given awards of merit by the Western Society of Agriculture."

He saw the farm's professional staff grow and the place itself change from a farm industry with livestock, poultry, plants, shrubs and trees, to a research institute with emphasis on commercial crops.

Another phase in his horticulture career came in 1961 when he was asked to write the script for a CBC radio program called Prairie Gardener.

Eventually this evolved into reading the script over the air as well, a work he continued from Edmonton and then Vancouver, until the end of 1978.

Another challenge came shortly before he retired from the experimental farm, when Mel Hurtig, well-known Edmonton publisher, suggested he write a reliable, comprehensive, practical reference book — to be named The Prairie Gardener — which would give clear-cut information as to the what, why, where, when and how of growing hardy plants.

"It was something Prairie gardeners badly need," Harp recalls. "Until then most of their reference books originated in England, the United States or somewhere in eastern Canada.

"So, after I retired I spent two years in Edmonton writing that reference book."

Looking back he tells you it was completely different to writing for radio.

"In each radio script I briefed my listeners on what I would talk about the next time, gave them my message and ended by refreshing their memories on some of the things I had said in past scripts.

"There was no need for all that in a book. It was there for gardeners to read and read again."

What brought Bert Harp to Victoria to live out his years, when he has a daughter in Edmonton and a son in Ottawa?

When he was stationed for a time at Tofino with the RCAF he frequently came down here on leave.

"I decided then that some day I would come back to live," he says.

Eighth heart transplant in Britain

CAMBRIDGE, England (UPI) — Surgeons, encouraged by two recent successes, have performed Britain's eighth heart transplant.

Nigel Olney, 35, a father of two, was the third British man to receive a heart transplant in the past six months. Five other patients had died.

The identity of the donor was kept secret at the request of his family, but doctors said the heart had to be flown to Cambridge for the surgery.

Dr. Terrence English, 46, a South African-born surgeon, performed the operation — his fourth transplant in the past year.

English's first patient died 17 days after a transplant last January. Last August, English performed a transplant on Keith Castle, 52, a retired builder who was doing exercises 50 days after his surgery and has since gone home.

English also performed a heart transplant on another man last November and that patient is due to be released from the hospital next month.

"Oh, we're not going to stop climbing, just because of losing our way," says Ida Lowy. She is 69 years old, and her husband, Fred, is 79. The couple, who live in Rhinebeck, N.Y., were lost during a weekend day-hike in the Catskill Mountains and had to spend 16 hours in frigid darkness, but appeared none the worse for their experience. The Lowys, married nearly 40 years, were exploring Indian Head Mountain when they split off from another hiking couple. Said Hamilton Topping, a forest ranger: "If they had sat down and hadn't kept walking, they probably wouldn't have made it through the icy night. They walked out and had some coffee and went home."

Astor

Who hasn't, at least on occasion, wondered "whatever happened to . . ." a famous movie glamour queen of yesterday? Jim Watters did often, and a year ago began to look up some Hollywood stars of the past. And the answers he got appear in the February issue of Life. Among those who replied were Mary Astor, in delicate health at 73 and living for the past eight years at the Motion Picture Country House in California; Louise Brooks, 73, arthritic and poor in Rochester, N.Y., who said "Nobody needs a book of mine to learn how to make a mess of life;" and Pola Negri, in her 80s, living will on inherited money.

Buckingham Palace is advertising for a new housekeeper to look after the royal residence's 600 rooms. Victoria Martin, housekeeper for more than 10 years, is retiring in July, and already the master of the household, Sir Peter Ashmore, is placing advertisements. "Vacancy for the post of chief housekeeper upon the retirement of the present holder," one ad reads. "Furnished flat available, age group 45 to 50."

A story published anonymously more than a century ago in a British magazine has been identified as Robert Louis Stevenson's first published story, at age 27, long before Treasure Island brought him fame. Roger Swearingen, a Stevenson scholar, was reading copies of London, a magazine published from 1877 to 1879. He found in the story, An Old Song, some passages he remembered reading in the Yale's Stevenson papers 10 years ago. Comparing, he found them identical. He described the story as "grim."

Dear Abby:

I am a happily married woman (22) and Mike is a wonderful, healthy, robust, masculine man of 25. We've been married a little over a year, and I have a problem I can't ask anyone else about. It has to do with sex. Mike has a big appetite for sex, but I am not complaining. It's his timing that bothers me. He always wants to make love on Sunday morning before mass. Abby, I know that love within marriage is not a sin, but for some silly reason I just hate to go to mass right after having had sex. I have been putting him off but I feel guilty.

Do you think I should postpone the lovemaking until after mass? Or keep telling myself I have no reason to feel guilty about it, and just try to get over that feeling. What's wrong with me?

Maggie

Dear Maggie:

Your problem is rooted in the notion that sex is sinful. You grew up believing it, and even though you're married and there is nothing to feel guilty about, you're still programmed to equate sex with sin. Talk to a priest, or a psychiatrist. (Try the priest first. It's cheaper.)

Dear Abby:

I have been considering donating my organs for possible transplant at the time of my death. However, I have heard that the family of the deceased is charged for transportation to the special hospital where the organs are removed; and also for the surgery to remove the organs. Is this true?

Considerate

Dear Considerate:

There is no charge for transportation to hospitals for the removal of organs. Time is so important in the removal of organs that a donor almost always has to be in the hospital at the time of death. (Corneas must be removed within four hours after death; kidneys within 20 minutes!)

There is no cost to the donor or the donor's family for the removal of organs.

However, when one donates his entire body to a medical school, in some areas the medical school bears the cost of transportation. Check with your nearest medical school.

Dear Abby:

You recently published a letter from a reader complaining about a woman who chewed ice continuously. You commented in a funny vein.

She might just be ill-mannered; on the other hand, she could very well be [illegible] from an iron deficiency.

"Pagophagia" is a medical term for ice eating: it is a form of "pica," which is a craving for unusual substances. It's a well-known symptom of iron deficiency.

The woman needs to be examined and a diagnosis made. She might overcome her ice-chewing habit by taking iron supplements.

Doctor Fred

Dear Fred:

Thanks for the hard, cold facts.

He always laughed the hardest at himself

When I first began to write this screed an incredible 18 years ago, Jack Scott gave me a column's worth of advice distilled from his vast experience. No doubt it was all sound counsel, but only one item has stuck with me. People matter more than things, veteran columnist Scott pointed out. Therefore I must concentrate on people.

Obedient to the maestro's dictum, I'm going to concentrate on a person today. To wit, on Jack Scott, now dead, but then in his golden heyday with Lord knows how many Our Town columns to his credit, and a rating shared with Greg Clarke of The Toronto Star as Canada's top newspaper writer.

The Scott I best remember, though, is of an earlier vintage. When we first met, he had not yet gone to ornament The Vancouver Sun. As a matter of fact, he wasn't even the boy-wonder city editor of the struggling Vancouver News-Herald.

He was simply a young reporter lately flown up from copy boy, the son of hardshell newsdesk hand Ed Scott, and regarded as a comer.

We worked for different papers — I for The Province — which in those years of keenly-honed competition automatically made us rivals.

I soon learned when out on a story to which Scott had been assigned that it was as well to keep my wits about me. The guy was good: he never missed a trick. Take your eyes off him for a minute and he would score a beat on you.

Jack Scott, on the job, was sharp, unscrupulous, and ruthless, as a good reporter was supposed to be. He had another side, however, which revealed itself more than once.

We were covering a union affair in a fleabag hall equipped with folding chairs. In the course of proceedings, my chair collapsed, trapping my hand most painfully.

Scott labored to untangle me, while my fingers dripped blood on the floor. Later, I was hunched over my typewriter in the Province newsroom, laboring out a one-handed story, when Jack Scott strolled in.

He dropped a "dupe" of his account of the union meeting on my desk.

"Thought you might like to have this," he said.

Kindness was as much part of his makeup as capacity for amusement and the amiable cynicism that dogged his days.

Every big-city daily has on its staff at least one anti-character. Ours on the Province was an old man who performed some vague function which guaranteed him desk-room. He labored night and day at a series of utterly incomprehensible scripts.

Like The Ancient Mariner, he was constantly on the watch for some victim to get his hooks into. He would then talk earnestly and single-mindedly about his work.

Jack Scott turned up on an errand to our newsroom. Old Bert promptly gaffled him.

"Let me tell you about my latest play," he began, gripping Jack by a forearm to prevent escape. "I have this great idea. I project Christopher Columbus and Isabella of Spain into the year 2010, and she sends him out to explore space."

"Sounds interesting," said Jack to this science fiction writer born before his time. "I'd like to read it some time."

"You can read it now!" Bert crowed, face glowing with delight.

He whipped open a desk drawer, and loaded Jack with dog-eared opuses.

As Jack, burdened, quitted the newsroom, he muttered out of the side of his mouth, "How in hell do I get into these fixes?"

That's easily answered. He got into them because of his innate kindness, and his enthusiasm for people, and his endless curiosity about them.

Our ways parted. I went to labor in Toronto vineyards, and Jack Scott, a stint of army public relations behind him, achieved greatness on The Sun.

But never was he more winning than when telling a story on himself. I remember him, leg slung across a corner of a newsroom desk, filling us in with gusto on his anti-smoking campaign.

It was a brisk campaign, complete with fanfare, sunshiny exhortations, and "I Quit!" lapel buttons. Unfortunately, the flesh proved weaker than the spirit, as originator Scott found after several hellish weeks of abstinence. He began to steal the occasional surreptitious puff on a cigarette.

Scott was bootlegging a cigarette in his office one afternoon, as he told the tale, when he looked up to see a window-washer dangling outside the building at eye-level. The window washer wore an "I Quit!" button, and was watching Jack with a stern frown.

Then he raised a hand, plucked the button from his chest, and cast it to the street below.

We laughed at that, but Jack Scott laughed harder. He always laughed hardest at himself.

FIVE YEARS ago when Bert Harp visited Eric Martin Institute to see if he could help as a volunteer, he picked up a severely handicapped child. He says now, "with the clasp of those tiny arms around my neck, I was hooked." Bert has been working with handicapped children ever since — and today, in her column on Page 20, Elizabeth Forbes tells about his experiences.

Standard increase big goal

OTTAWA (CP) — Raising the living standard of single elderly women at least to the poverty line has become a major goal for the National Council of Women of Canada, says president Amy Williams.

Mrs. Williams, in Ottawa for a three-day council meeting, says it is a sad comment that much of society vows "not to live beyond our means" when the elderly can barely survive from month to month.

She said in a telephone interview that a modest increase last year in the guaranteed income supplement for single people has eased the situation but only slightly.

The maximum guaranteed income supplement paid by the federal government to pensioners because they have little or no income from other sources now is $189 monthly.

A single pensioner receiving the maximum supplement on top of the existing monthly old age pension of $182 would get $366 a month, or about $4,390 a year.

Statistics Canada has defined the poverty line as $5,290 for single persons living in cities of more than 500,000.

Mrs. Williams, 52, said the council was not able to gauge the sympathy of the Progressive Conservative government toward the elderly, especially women because "they weren't in (power) long enough for us to comment."

Council executives were to meet Health and Welfare Minister David Crombie earlier this month but the meeting was postponed when the government was defeated.

Also, Crombie suffered a heart attack in December and has not been able to participate in the campaign.

Mrs. Williams said Monique Begin, former Liberal health minister, has been a sympathetic listener.

She says women will play the primary role in determining if Canadians can become a conserver society.

She says women are mainly the consuming audience and are responsible for shaping the attitudes of future generations — their children.

A mother of three adult children, Mrs. Williams says women must become more economically and emotionally independent but "there is a new stage in the women's movement. They need their men and their families."

She said women will never gain equality without family and community support.

And she added, "don't knock motherhood."

By DR. L. L. COLEMAN

We have two young children in the house. The past two winters, one or the other gets terrible cases of croup. The children and we become terrified. Is there any way to avoid these attacks?

Mrs. N.M.

Dear Mrs. M.:

Croup is probably one of the most distressing conditions for a young child, for parents and for doctors. Fortunately, the severity and frequency of attacks of croup have been diminished greatly since the discovery of the antibiotics and cortisone.

Croup is an inflammation and infection of the lining of the throat, larynx (windpipe) and lungs. The disease occurs most frequently among infants and children who have a narrow windpipe. As the child grows older, swelling of the lining of the windpipe does not as easily interfere with the breathing mechanism.

It has been noted for a long time that attacks of croup tend to occur more frequently in the late winter and early spring. Virus and streptococcus infections cause the thickening of the mucous membrane lining the respiratory tract. With it comes thickened mucus, which interferes with the free flow of air into the lungs. High fever and a barking cough quickly indentify an attack of croup.

It is almost impossible to keep children free of colds, no matter how well they are isolated and protected. Even in ordinary play with other children, a germ is readily transmitted from one child to another. Infants can be the recipients of droplets of infections when adoring parents, grandparents and friends lean over the crib to talk "at" them.

Steam inhalations are probably the most important and helpful treatments for the early difficulty in breathing. They are not only soothing, but also they actually reduce the swelling of the mucous membrane lining the respiratory tract. Holding a child in your arms in a bathroom filled with steam is an excellent temporary measure to adopt until medical help arrives.

Antibiotics and cortisone have cut down on the serious complications that previously resulted from severe croup. When the attack is severe and when medical attention is not available, the ideal place for a child with croup is the hospital. Oxygen is sometimes used along with a variety of aerosol solutions, to cut down the thickness of the secretions in the lungs.

The mere presence of hospital personnel reduces the anxiety of the parents during these distressing episodes. Croup no longer has the terrifying implication that it did many years ago.

Seniors have clout in vote

the fourth quarter

"Try to get out to vote on election day even if you have to be carried on a stretcher," W. J. Nourse, Waterloo, Ont., urges fellow seniors.

He is one of many older Canadians going all out, nasty weather or no, to make their views known and their votes count in this unfortunate and unnecessary mid-winter election.

Out on the west coast, for example, Tom Alsbury, former mayor of Vancouver and now in our senior ranks, is spearheading a movement called SGAN (Senior Citizens for Action NOW). "Now" means the short period before election day, then voting for the candidate who seems most likely to really do something — soon — for suffering seniors.

SCAN is fighting particularly for the million or more seniors trying to get by on incomes around $3200 a year — many widows and other older people living alone.

Alsbury says it is no good going hat in hand and asking politely for "a little more please". It is high time we used our clout. After election day we must bear down on our new or re-elected MPs and demand action. He points out that there are at least as many seniors as there are members of organized labor; the latter know how to go about getting their share of the pie.

This is no flash-in-the-pan activity for Tom Alsbury. He long has been active in work to improve the lot of seniors, acting as a volunteer sponsored by the B.C. Department of Human Resources. Such volunteer workers are appointed by the provincial government to help seniors — "someone in their own age group to whom they can turn for assistance, knowing their confidence will be respected" is the way the department describes their valuable cooperation.

But back to February 18, 1980. Whichever party comes to power seniors expect speedier evidence that help is forthcoming.

When Health and Welfare Minister David Crombie spoke to the National Pensioners' and Senior Citizens' Federation last September, he promised a review of private and federal pensions for the elderly. Since MPs saw fit to give up before really trying to work together — and precipitated another election instead — the Clark government cannot be blamed for not moving swiftly on these urgent problems.

Seniors' groups across the country are right in demanding action instead of additional lengthy studies of problems which seem self-evident.

It is clear and irrefutable that aging pensioners represent the low-income group that is hardest hit by continually rising prices. Pension reform was in the Throne Speech as a high priority but that policy was not reflected in the Budget. The new parliament must do better!

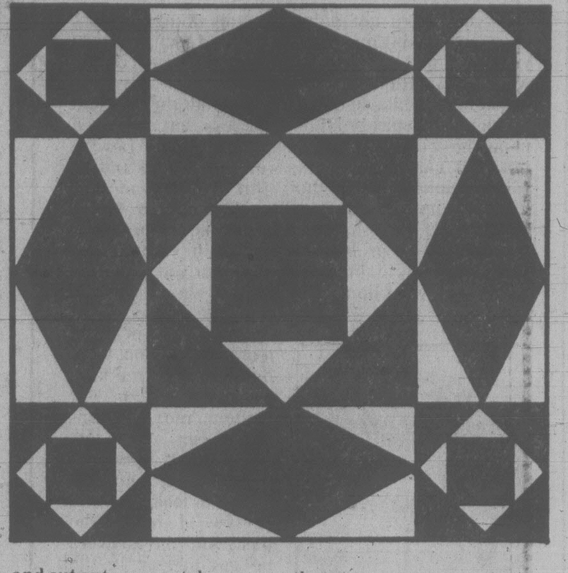
Easier proportions for storm at sea



According to Marguerite Ickis in her book, The Standard Book of Quilt Making & Collecting, this Storm At Sea pattern is made with just 7" (18 cm) blocks. Her book features a pattern which calls for only 195 blocks, or a set of 13 by 15 for a double size quilt. She recommends the colors white, light blue and dark blue. Using these directions, the little white triangles in the four corner squares would each be half of a ⅞" (2.2 cm) square. Tricky, isn't it?

Perhaps this will give you an idea of the piecing skills our mothers and grandmothers possessed. They were judged by their fellow quilters on the closeness of their quilting stitches, and the accuracy and complexity of their designs. While Storm At Sea is not a difficult pattern to draft, it is essential to use the same seam allowance, ¼" (6 mm), throughout when seaming. Mother most probably preferred to piece this by hand since she wanted to make sure the points came together just so.

Why not try a contemporary version of this pattern. We recommend a larger size block — 16" (40.5 cm) — which will make your work much quicker, and we have plastic templates for the complete block so that all you need to do is trace them and cut out your patches.

A 16" (40.5 cm) block is an ideal size for a one-block pillow top. A polyester pillow form is available in this size, which saves you the time of making one. This is also a nice block for the front of a tote bag — try it in red, white and navy for spring.

The intriguing thing about this quilt design is the way straight seams can be made to produce curved effects by their placement, and the color choices possible. It's a most interesting challenge that you are sure to enjoy.

Machine piecing is simple. This is the way it works. The central square of light blue will have the four white triangles pieced to it, forming another square which then has four larger light blue triangles pieced to it. The large rectangles are made up by piecing four triangular shaped white pieces to the sides of a large dark blue diamond. The small corner squares are constructed in the same way as the larger central square, each being made up of a central light blue square surrounded by four white triangles, surrounded by four dark blue triangles. As you can see, the shapes are not difficult — they're ones you use all the time. However, when put together, you and your friends will marvel at how complex it looks.

Quilting may be done just ⅛" (3 mm) inside each seam. You can also add borders, perhaps in dark blue to frame your work. The colors mentioned are just suggestions; consider also combinations of blues and greens, turquoises and mauves. The sea reflects many different hues during sunset, moonrise, calm or storm at sea. Let your imagination be your guide.

Patterns available: Cut-Your-Own Plastic Template Pattern No. 60: Storm At Sea, 16" (40.5 cm) block. Contains eight templates, plus instructions. $4.20.

All parties going after those 600,000 campus votes

OTTAWA (CP) — The Feb. 18 election will be one with a difference — perhaps as much as a 600,000-vote difference.

For the first time since 1972, a federal election is being held during the academic year, allowing the country's 600,000 university and college students to vote in the ridings where they attend school.

The significance of this fact has not been lost on party planners.

And party leaders have been hitting campuses across the country almost daily. While political organizers choose the campus setting for campaign speeches partly because it usually guarantees a lively crowd — and good television news coverage that night — they also hope to gather the youth vote.

Party officials say that vote will be important in campus-heavy ridings such as Halifax East, Ottawa Centre, London West, Toronto Spadina and Vancouver Centre.

"We're trying to get them all enumerated," says Sue Elliott, director of the Progressive Conservative Youth Federation. Jean Gagnon, a spokesman for the Young Liberals, and Joanna McNebin of the New Democratic Party say they are doing the same.

"The youth vote will be very important this time around," Gagnon said. "But we want them to focus on the national campaign rather than local ones. The general approach is get rid of Joe Clark."

Ms. McNebin said the NDP has been extremely active on campus and party leader Ed Broadbent has been pushing hard on troubling issues such as job-creation programs and revision of unemployment insurance compensation.

"Ed likes kids and they seem to like him," she added. "He cares."

This emphasis on universitites and colleges is a change from the May 22 election when many post-secondary schools had closed for the summer. Many students then were caught at voter-enumeration time on the move between school and home or en route to summer jobs, missing their chance to vote.

This time, the chief electoral officer has assigned returning officers to campuses to help get students on local voting lists.

It is against the law for anyone to place his name on voters' lists in more than one riding. Despite this, some students register at school while asking parents to list them back home.

Political scientist Jon Pammett of Carleton University in Ottawa, co-author of Political Choice in Canada, an analysis of voter trends in previous elections, says it is difficult to determine how students will cast their ballots.

He says there is no data available to indicate how students have voted in the past.

But his book says previous studies show a greater proportion of those who vote Social Credit or NDP are under 30 years of age than those who vote Liberal or Conservative.

"This is especially true in 1974, when 43 per cent of the Social Credit and 37 per cent of the NDP voters were under 30. In contrast, only 26 and 23 per cent of the Liberal and Conservative voters respectively were under 30."

But this should not be taken as an indication that — as was popularly believed in the 1960s — most students sympathize with left-of-centre parties.

ELECTION 80

Quebec riding gives Clark warm greeting

GASPE (CP) — Prime Minister Clark faced boisterous supporters Sunday and urged them to send a strong team of Quebecers to Ottawa as part of a majority Progressive Conservative government.

Clark told a cheering crowd of more than 500 persons the Conservatives need more Quebec MPs to form a strong, national government reflecting the aspirations of all Canadians. The Tories won only two of the 75 Quebec seats in the May 22 election.

The prime minister's warm reception in this community oh the south shore of the St. Lawrence River was one of the best he has received during campaign stops in the Liberal-dominated province.

"We're campaigning against the clock now," an ecstatic Clark aide said. "We're going like hell."

Clark, speaking alternately in French and English, portrayed himself as the best person to represent Quebec's interests in English Canada.

Conservatives respect the need for strong provincial government and a strong central government working together, he said.

Repeating Conservative plans to make Canada energy self-sufficient by 1990, he said the Liberals are wrong to say we should concentrate on securing oil contracts with Venezuela and Mexico.

Canadians living in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces have been dependent on foreign oil supplies for too long, the prime minister said.

Meanwhile, in Toronto, New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent made another strong pitch Sunday for Petro-Canada to develop future oil sands plants in Alberta.

Appearing on the CTV television program Question Period, Broadbent said using the state-owned oil company instead of private enterprise would save Canadians $500 million for each plant built and would not deprive the provincial government of one penny in royalties.

Later, after the questions and answers were finished but the credits of the program were still being taped for broadcast, the NDP leader was heard by those in the studio to say he couldn't support oil sands development by "goddam Shell." The passing reference to Shell Canada Ltd. was presumably not intended for public consumption.

The NDP leader faced a number of tough questions from journalists on the CTV panel, including several on defence policies and the federal deficit.

Broadbent said last week his party might be forced to reassess its 1969 decision of withdrawing from NATO and NORAD.

Broadbent, making his fourth trip to British Columbia in the six weeks of the winter campaign, planned to launch a six-day cross-country swing Monday as a guest of Jack Webster, the provocative and often abrasive morning television host on B.C. TV.

Former finance minister Jean Chretien was in Terrace on the weekend and told a news conference a Liberal government would be on the side of the Indians.

Chretien said he had done all he could when he was Indian affairs minister to settle problems ranging from land claims to the preserving the status of Indian women who marry non-Indians.

But Chretien said one of the biggest problems his government had in settling Indian issues was the lack of agreement on solutions among the natives themselves.

Meanwhile, the Progressive Conservative and New Democratic Party candidates are running neck and neck in the federal Vancouver Centre riding while incumbent Liberal Art Phillips is trailing, says a poll taken by The Province.

The morning newspaper's telephone poll of 125 voters says Tory candidate Pat Carney and New Democrat Ron Johnson had the support of 28 per cent of the voters, while Phillips had 21 per cent.

Eastern cities for Olympics?

EDMONTON (CP) — If the Western nations decide to boycott the Olympics Games in Moscow and if Canada is chosen to be the new host, cities in Quebec and Ontario would be considered first, says Sport Minister Steve Paproski..

The minister said in an interview Saturday that all planning is at a preliminary stage.

The United States and Canada have warned Moscow they will boycott the Moscow Olympics if Soviet troops are not withrawn from Afghanistan by Feb. 20.

Paproski said he has been looking into the possibility of Canada being the host for at least some of the events.

FRENCH IMMERSION

Beginning in September, 1980, School District No. 63 (Saanich) will offer a French Immersion Program at the Kindergarten and Grade 1 levels providing there is sufficient enrolment.

Basically immersion implies a classroom in which instruction is given in French by a bi-lingual teacher who is a native speaker of French or who has acquired natural fluency in the French language.

With each successive year a larger proportion of the curriculum is taught in English until a balance is reached between the time devoted to instruction in each language.

Parents should note that no special transportation allowance will be provided.

Before deciding in which school the program is to be located it is necessary to have additional information regarding prospective students. If you plan to enrol your child in the program, please complete the form below and return it by Friday, February 15, 1980 to:

D. R. Smyth,
District Superintendent of Schools,

WHO GETS THE CHRISTIAN VOTE?
"CHRISTIANS MAY BE SURPRISED TO HEAR ABOUT CHRIST'S ATTITUDE TOWARD POLITICS." JACK CLOVER TOLD HIS AUDIENCE SUNDAY NIGHT.

"Christ lived in a political world, just as we do. He lived in a world of suffering and strife, of inequality of politics and power."

Christ did not tell his followers to become leaders, rulers or judges. He didn't even tell us to reform the world.

He did say "Come out of her (the world), my people." He did say "Give to Caesar, that which is Caesar's."

A Christian will follow his example by avoiding involvement with politics, at the same time willingly obeying the laws of the land and paying taxes but neither promulgating nor subverting the system.

Only when the law of the land opposes the law of Christ will the Christian disobey the law. When he breaks the law, a Christian accepts the penalties prescribed by law.

A Christian recognizes the state's need for peace-keeping armed forces and greatly appreciates the privileges of living in a democratic country. Nevertheless, Christians cannot become officers within that system.

At least one of the world's most outstanding modern philosophers agrees that politics and Christianity are not compatible. The late Bertrand Russell says in his book Power: "Christianity was in its earliest days entirely unpolitical. The best representatives of this primitive tradition in our time are the Christadelphians . . . this attitude, however, is only possible for a small sect . . ."

So then, regardless of social pressure to the contrary, a follower of Christ will leave the decisions of state to others and no politician should receive a Christian's vote."

Watchdog Richards Report #155
Many, many thanks go to the member of the Union Club of British Columbia of Victoria, who invited Your City's Watchdog for lunch last Wednesday. After living in Victoria for 50 years this was a pleasant experience. Your City's Watchdog suggests that they tow the Princess Marguerite over to Seattle and use it as a Tourist Information office for the summer of 1980 rather than sell it for scrap. Please continue to phone 383-6259 or write Your City's Watchdog C. Joe Richards, PO Box 154 for information regarding Municipal matters. Seen—In-Passing: Peter Dorazio along with other distinguished Victorians having lunch at the Union Club. Two Victoria policemen on footpatrol on Yates Street and Policewoman Brenda patrolling Yates and Douglas just before midnight last Thursday evening. Postcript: Many thanks to Louise the waitress for excellent service.

I WOULD LIKE TO HEAR FROM unattached gentlemen, 45-55, who enjoy being outdoors, preferrably live in the country and who would like to meet a woman with similar tastes. I am 40's, slim, reasonably attractive, somewhat shy. I like hiking, riding, gardening, occasional theatre and would like to meet sincere, good humoured men with similar interests. Victoria Press Box 694.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

The Lord is my Shepherd
I shall not want
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures
He restoreth my soul
He leadeth me in the path of righteousness for his name sake
Yea though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death
I will fear no evil
For thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies
Thou anointest my head with oil
My cup runneth over
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life and I will dwell in the House of the Lord forever.

Hunting with canon rapped

PRESTON, England (CP) — Anti-blood sport campaigners disrupted an Anglican mass here recently because the rector, Canon Roland Meredith, had taken part in a rabbit hunt the day before.

The 22 protesters lined up at the altar rail as the rector was breaking bread for communion and chanted:

"All things bright and beautiful,

"All creatures great and small,

"All things wise and wonderful,

"Your rector kills them all."

The demonstrators, members of the Hunt Saboteurs Association of Great Britain, faced a congregation of more than 300 people, including the mayor of Preston and the town's police chief, Walter Reel.

As the mock hymn ended, Chief Reel stepped forward to escort Wetton from the church, followed by his chanting supporters.

Ironically, the mass was a farewell service for Canon Meredith who was leaving doe a new parish.

Brief reign forecast for Karmal

Times News Services

Diplomats in neighboring Pakistan are estimating that Afghanistan's strongman Babrak Karmal will be out of power in two or three months, as he shows a continuing inability to improve the domestic economic climate and reverse the distintigration of the Afghan army.

Reports from Kabul indicate Karmal's government is having trouble with shortages of firewood, meat and wheat.

The Soviet Union's top military officer Marshal Nikolay V. Orgarkov arrived in Kabul Saturday and what he found were military problems that begin to resemble what American forces faced a decade ago in Indochina.

There is no question that Soviet troops control the major Afghan cities, the main roads and the government in Kabul. The chance that the scattered bands of insurgents could somehow defeat the Russians is zero.

Nevertheless, according to the best estimates of U.S. specialists in global intelligence, the Soviet military is confronted with serious difficulties. These include the regular harassment by Afghan rebels, the defection of Afghan army units and the disappointing performance of some Soviet divisions.

Meanwhile, President Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, looking for international partners in a U.S. aid program for Pakistan, flew to Saudi Arabia today for meetings with leaders of the wealthy and staunchly anti-communist kingdom.

The U.S. has offered Pakistan $400 million in military and economic assistance over two years because of the Soviet intervention in neighboring Afghanistan. Brzezinski had told Pakistani officials in Islamabad on the weekend that this was "only the beginning of the United States response to the threat."

In a weekend statement, Saudi Crown Prince Fahd urged the Moslem world to unite to give moral and financial aid to the anti-communist Moslem rebellion in Afghanistan.

Another of Carter's emmisaries, Muhammad Ali arrived in Kenya today on the second stop of his mission to persuade African nations to support a boycott of the Moscow Olympics.

Vowing never to be labelled an "Uncle Tom" or a traitor "against my black brothers," Ali said he intends to bring back to President Carter the feelings of Africans toward America's policies.

But Ali abandoned an earlier threat to quit the mission and decided to go ahead with a five-nation tour of Africa he began Sunday at Carter's request to drum up support for an Olympic boycott.

Kenya Saturday became the second Black African nation to join the growing list of countries asking that the 1980 Summer Olympics be moved.

Flora confirms retaliation planned

VANCOUVER (CP) — External Affairs Minister Flora MacDonald said here retaliatory measures will be taken against the Soviet Union for the expulsion of the Canadian military attache in Moscow.

Her ministry is considering expelling one or more of the 64 employees at the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa.

MacDonald told a news conference Sunday that she warned the Soviet Union when she expelled three embassy officials for spying last month that if they took any retaliatory measures Canada would take "further steps in due course."

When the Russians expelled Col. Harold Gold last week and accused him of spying, MacDonald started to act on her warning.

Libya French embassy sacked

PARIS (AP) — A mob of demonstrators shouting "popular revolution in Tunisia" today attacked the French Embassy in the Libyan capital of Tripoli, destroying the embassy interior and setting fire to cars parked in the diplomatic compound.

All embassy personnel escaped unharmed as the mob forced its way into the building and began destroying everything in sight, Ambassador Claude Malo said in an interview with French radio.

It was the second attack on a Western embassy in Tripoli in about two months. On Dec. 2, about 2,000 Libyans chanting support for Iran stormed and ransacked the U.S. Embassy. No embassy employees were hurt in that attack but the first and second floors of the building suffered extensive fire damage.

The French foreign ministry said it was "reserving the right to demand appropriate reparations" and lodged a formal protest with the Libyan foreign ministry.

Malo, interviewed at his residence, said at the time of the attack, the embassy was guarded by only two policemen in spite of a request for more protection.

"The demonstrators forced their way in the doors, entered the building and destroyed everything in their path," he said. "The walls are still standing, but the interior is destroyed."

"I think that there is a close link between problems in Tunisia and the demonstration in front of our embassy," he said, referring to the aid France gave to Tunisia to help the army put down an attack Jan. 26 on the town of Gafsa.

The mining town was attacked by guerrillas alleged to have been trained in Libya. France sent military transport planes to carry troops to Gafsa and sent a navy squadron to patrol the Tunisian coast.

The attackers were disloged from the town after about 12 hours, but sporadic fighting continued for days in the nearby hills as soldiers routed the last rebels.

GM tries $ 500 rebate to move larger 1979s

DETROIT (UPI) — General Motors Corp., which has some 75,000 1979 full-sized cars and vans in stock, has announced it will pay $500 rebates to customers who buy the vehicles between today and March 10.

It is the auto giant's first customer rebate program since 1975, when the auto industry was in a severe slump.

The industry is again suffering from lagging sales, and more than 150,000 workers are on indefinite layoffs, including 71,200 of GM's national labor force.

Buyers can receive $500 from GM or have the rebate apply to the purchase of Chevrolet Impalas and Caprice Classics, Pontiac Catalinas and Bonnevilles, Oldsmobile Delta 88s, Buick LeSabres and GMC and Chevrolet vans.

Since not all dealers have vehicles covered by the rebate plan, the automaker has dubbed the program "the $500 Treasury Hunt."

GM's rebate program five years ago was aimed at moving fuel-efficient but slow-selling compacts and subcompacts, which carried $200 to $400 rebates.

U.K. rights pioneer dies

LONDON (AP) — Baroness Summerskill, a pioneer of women's rights in Britain and a former chairman of the Labor Party, died of a heart attack at her London home today. She was 78.

The baroness, born Edith Summerskill in 1901 and originally a doctor, was known as Dr. Edith to fellow lawmakers during her 42 years in Parliament. She served in the House of Commons from 1938 to 1961 when she was elevated to the House of Lords as a life peer.

A vigorous reformer, she campaigned to improve health care and founded the Socialist Medical Association, which pressed for the setting up of Britain's national health service.

ORISTANO, Italy (AP) — Two prison inmates were married in a church and took a four-day honeymoon before returning to their jail cells, authorities said.

gardening

A flowery bargain

In the early days of Victoria gardens, perennial flowers were the source of color, fragrance and interest from early spring into late fall.

One reason was that the wealth of shrubs and ornamental trees have been available to us at moderate prices since 1950 were not introduced to gardeners until the early years of this century. They were still expensive items before 1940.

Today there is a renewed interest in adding the beauty and living improvement of permanent plantings around homes. Because the cost and general maintenance of homes is already high, families are wanting to increase the value of the home with plants at economical prices.

For this purpose, perennial flowers will again have their place. They are prolific bloomers within a year of being bought; some will even be in flower when purchased. They will flower again at the same time for several years; and the number of plants may be increased by division or simple cuttings for an endless number of years. This takes a knowledge of plants and the basics of gardening, but are skills not difficult to learn.

Originally many of our common herbaceous (soft stemmed) perennials were grown as medicinal plants. they came down through generations of gardeners by way of monastery gardens and the herb plots that formed a part of every estate and cottage garden.

In 1801, on the New York City site where Rockefeller Center now stands, Dr. David Hosack created, tended and maintained a herbal garden which he named the Elgin Botanic Garden. The plants he grew, while primarily for medicinal research by students of Columbia University medical school, were a great attraction to visitors and the dwellers of the growing city.

Later with plants from other countries carefully gathered and cared-for, the Garden became known as an oasis of color. Plants with fragrance and beauty of form and color were doubtless distributed to private gardens as the area developed in Manhattan and across the river. In herbal literature of New York, many of our favorite perennials are featured.

Perennials in our gardens today will also offer fragrance, a variation of leaf texture, shape and color, quite apart from variations in the flowers of a genus, such as delphiniums, resulting from intensive hybridizing in this century.

Because of the great variety among perennials today, they will round out basic plantings of heavier textured shrubs. Kinds can be found to suit sun or shade, for tall accents or for low tying-in effects.

Herbaceous perennials which have come down to us in colors and forms not even dreamed of by men of Dr. Hosack's time in New York's Rockefeller Center site, include peonies, phloxes, perennial asters and daylilies.

New varieties of these have been added by the dozens through the years because of their desirability in average gardens wherever climates are temperate.

This coming season, watch for flowering perennials in local nurseries and garden centres; some will be growing in separate containers already with a stem of flowers; others may be rooted divisions or rooted cuttings not yet in bloom. Ask for herbaceous perennials; they are the plants that return much for their relatively small cost.

Correction: It should have been peas, not beans, in Friday's column on vegetables that can be started while the ground is still cold. Green peas are sufficiently hardy they can be started any day now, but green bean seeds will rot in the soil if planted before warmer weather arrives.

THE JUMP ON THE EIGHTIES —

Make sure you get the jump on the Eighties. Designers are making the jumpsuit a key piece for spring, which should give you some clues about fall. It has certainly evolved from the safari styles of ten years ago. They were just a look. This year's jumpsuit is more functional fashion: the one-piece suit with dash that you can literally "jump into". It's that easy. And it's all part of the attitude women have today about looking good, dressing fast, without a lot of fuss. Jay Claire gets things jumping in Number One with this polyester/cotton jumpsuit, for sizes 5 to 13. In blue only.

B.C. energy goals released

New board to control rates

The Social Credit government today released its long-promised, long-delayed provincial energy policy and it contains few surprises.

It simply ties up in a single package, promises and policies enunciated by various government spokesman over the past two years.

The one semi-surprise in Energy Minister Bob McClelland's announcement is that the B.C. Energy Commission will be replaced by a B.C. Utilities Commission which will have the power to regulate B.C. Hydro gas and electricity rates.

The final word on Hydro rates has rested with the provincial cabinet until now.

One other new item: No further hydro-electric development by private interests will be permitted.

All future developments will be carried out by Hydro in accordance with policy directions set by the government.

McClelland was asked whether this spells the end for Alcan's proposed $800 million plan to expand its 1,042 megawatt power station at Kemano, south of Kitimat.

The station would have powered three new smelters in northern B.C.

McClelland said this is something that will have to be negotiated.

Much of the policy bared today had a ring of familiarity.

— Consideration is being given to a Vancouver Island natural gas pipeline.

— Research and development of alternate energy sources will be intensified.

— Energy exports will be reviewed and energy pricing policies examined.

— B.C.'s dependence on imported oil must be reduced and greater use made of our own natural gas resource.

— The government has set a target of reducing oil consumption from the present 45 per cent of our total energy needs to below 40 per cent by 1985.

— To show its commitment to energy conservation, the government intends to replace all its vehicles with more fuel-efficient models. However this will occur in the normal vehicle replacement process over the years.

Nuclear energy was not mentioned in the policy statement but McClelland ruled it out categorically.

"Nuclear energy is not an option for B.C.," he said in reply to a question.

The fundamental objective of the energy policy, McClelland said, is "energy security" for B.C.

The policy has been two years in the making under three ministers — Jack Davis, Jim Hewitt and now McClelland.

It was to have been released in September but was delayed until December and finally was made public at a breakfast meeting today at the Empress.

"It's pretty thin soup," commented NDP energy critic Bob Skelly.

"The elephant has labored and given birth to a rat.

"We can't see that there is anything new in this policy. Most of the things the government has announced already. A public utilities commission was promised in B.C. Hydro prospectuses as far back as 1976," Skelly said.

McClelland said the policy

Colwood RCMP Const. Craig Reid examines car in which five were killed

Family of 5 dies in car crash

A Courtenay family of five — three of them young children — was killed in a head-on crash of their small car at Langford Sunday afternoon.

Roger DeMong, 36, district agriculturist for the upper island; his wife Marion, 34; son David, nine; daughters Laura, six and Kathryn, 20 months, were returning home after a weekend with Mrs. DeMong's parents at Sidney.

Colwood RCMP said a southbound pickup truck glanced off another car on Trans-Canada Highway near Spencer, then struck the DeMong car, killing the occupants outright.

Truck driver Murray Marchment, 37, of Youbou, received multiple injuries and is in critical condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Occupants of the first car were not injured.

Police said the accident happened at 3:55 a quarter-mile north of Spencer where the highway curves around the west end of Florence Lake.

Marchment's pickup glanced off the first car, also northbound, then carried on into the path of the DeMong car.

Almost exactly a year ago a head-on collision took the lives of four persons within 300 feet of the same spot.

DeMong was well-known in the Courtenay area, where he was appointed by the provincial agriculture department in March 1973.

It was his first posting in the province, having been employed by the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool previously.

He and his wife were both from Saskatchewan, from which Mrs. DeMong's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Powell, retired to Sidney.

DeMong was a voluntary probation officer at Courtenay and with his wife was active in their Roman Catholic parish. A mass was to be said today at 5 p.m. at St. Patrick's Church.

UN shah probe accepted by Iran

Times News Services

TEHRAN — The drawn-out hostage crisis at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran appeared on the road to a settlement today with the announcement that Iran has agreed to a UN-sponsored international commission to consider allegations against the deposed shah.

"The international commission will be effective in solving the hostage crisis," a spokesman for the Iranian foreign ministry said of the weekend decision by the governing Revolutionary Council.

Establishment of the commission, proposed by UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, has been approved by Iranian leader Ayatollah Khomeini as well as the council, said Nassirosadat Salami.

A spokesman for the militants, reached by telephone at the embassy, said he was aware of the council's decision, announced Saturday night, but refused to comment.

Salami did not say when the commission would begin deliberations in Tehran. However, he said its members would be selected by Waldheim and would include Iranian and foreign representatives.

Waldheim has spoken of a "package solution" to the hostage standoff that would involve releasing the Americans to a third party in Iran — such as the International Red Cross — while an international commission investigated allegations against the shah.

In an interview published over the weekend newly-elected Premier Abolhassan Bani-sadr was critical of the United States for its admission of the shah but placed the embassy takeover within the context of a protest against relations with a domineering power. "It is not yet determined how many of the hostages were spies and how many were not," Bani-Sadr was quoted as saying. "The Iranian nation does not aim at these few people; it aims at American policy."

Grits slip, undecided soar

TORONTO (CP) — A public opinion poll commissioned by the CTV television network shows the Liberal lead over the Progressive Conservatives has declined nationally and the number of undecided voters has increased to a whopping 40.4 per cent of the electorate.

However, the huge number of undecided voters makes it virtually impossible to use the poll to predict the result of the election.

The poll, taken last week after disclosure of the Canadian embassy's cloak-and-dagger activities in Iran and released Sunday, shows the Liberal lead slipped by five percentage points since another CTV poll conducted two weeks previously.

The CTV poll surveyed 2,039 voters nationally Wednesday, Thursday and Friday last week.

The question asked was: "In the upcoming federal election, which political party will you be most likely to vote for?"

Results from the Atlantic region showed the Liberals fell to 44 from 59 per cent, Tories increased to 37 from 32 per cent and the NDP jumped to 19 from nine per cent.

There was little change in Quebec, which at 51 per cent holds the largest number of undecided voters.

In the Prairies the Liberals plummetted to 26 from 41 per cent, the Tories rose to 51 from 43 per cent and the NDP increased to 22 from 16 per cent.

In British Columbia, where the percentage of undecided voters is almost as high as Quebec, the Tories rose to 38 per cent from 36, the Liberals sagged to 27 from 33, and the NDP increased to 35 from 31 per cent.

Sting stabs in Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight members of Congress have been implicated in an FBI investigation of political corruption that was carefully monitored at the highest levels of the U.S. justice department to avert cases of entrapment, sources said Sunday.

As a result of the reports, a weekend conference of Republican congressmen, governors and other officials in Easton, Md., urged an "immediate, full, impartial" investigation of the allegations by congressional ethics committees.

The sources said FBI Director William Webster and top justice department lawyers closely policed the investigation and that the FBI was never the first to suggest bribes to public figures.

Convict rampage ends, 35 dead

Times News Services

SANTA FE, N.M. — Fires still burned in the New Mexico state penitentiary today as 1,100 prisoners huddled in tents outside the compound and stories unfolded of torture, mutilations and murder that left at least 35 prisoners dead, scores wounded, and 15 others missing.

State troopers and national guardsmen regained control of the prison Sunday without firing a shot.

Gov. Bruce King told a news conference that at least seven died of drug overdoses, others died of smoke inhalation and some were murdered. At least 14 others died in reprisal slayings, which included decapitations and other dismemberment, burnings and hangings.

The governer said a total of 50 prisoners were unaccounted for, including the dead.

State police said more bodies were found today in the gymnasium which had still been burning early today. "They're inside looking for more right now," Ulibarri said. "That's where the biggest fire was."

The 36 hours of carnage at the prison was the most serious since the 1971 Attica riot in upstate New York left 43 persons dead.

State officials said it may cost as much as $50 million to replace the state's only maximum-security prison which was built to house 850 and was holding 1,136 when the riot erupted early Saturday. In the meantime, Gov. King appealed today to neighboring states to take some of the prisoners.

The rioters, who ransacked prison offices and found confidential records, turned on informers with savage revenge, officials said. Many were attacked with meat cleavers and burned.

A headless corpse was propped up in a courtyard. One prisoner had his eyes gouged out.

State police said the riot was not racially motivated, but racial tensions broke out afterwards.

Air fares to rise by 20%

TORONTO (CP) — Domestic air fares will be increased at least 20 per cent this year because of rising fuel prices, says Claude Taylor, president of Air Canada.

And further rises in energy costs as Canada heads toward oil self-sufficiency make more increases inevitable. Canadian airlines have already announced a 9.5-percent fare increase scheduled for March 1.

Air Canada's future aircraft purchases will depend on reaction by passengers to the higher prices, Taylor said.

"If energy prices cause fares to rise to such an extent that they cause the low-price end to dry up, it will have a major impact on air travel."

Sunday is run day for army of marathon hopefuls

Getting an army of 200 to 300 on the move every Sunday morning is no small challenge in logistics but organizers of the first annual Royal Victoria Marathon, sponsored by the Times and VI90, have the weekly training sessions at the YM-YWCA running smoothly. Runners head for the gym at 9:30 a.m., leaving shoes at the door (top left), then go through a series of stretching exercises (centre and bottom left). Divided into groups according to ability, they then hit the road for an hour around Beacon Hill Park-Dallas Road areas before returning to the Y for lectures and discussions on the art of long distance running. Aspirants come in all shapes and sizes, evident by the group (top right) being led by Alex Marshall of the Prairie Inn Hash House Harriers. Others like the chap (top centre) find the sessions a great way to give the family pooch some exercise. The sanctioned marathon, consisting of two circuits from Beacon Hill Park to Willows Beach and back, is designed to promote fitness through running. The idea is to complete the 26 miles, 385 yards regardless of time. Training sessions continue at the Y and the park each Sunday at 9:30 a.m. until race day Saturday, Sept. 20. (John McKay photos).

Minister 'negative' - Trident creditor

One of the creditors of Trident Aircraft has accused federal Small Business and Industry Minister Ron Huntington of turning his back on small business in Canada.

R.S. Summerfeldt, president of Project Recruiting Group of Toronto, said Huntington was motivated more by political reasons than business reasons in cancelling the government's agreement to provide a $4 million loan to the fledgling light plane manufacturer.

"For an individual representing small business, I believe you are an irresponsible person," Summmerfeldt wrote.

"You are negative to say the least, considering your function is to help small business and not hinder it."

Summerfeldt called small business "the very heart" of the Canadian economy and the base for the country's future.

"Considerig big business is owned or controlled by foreign interests, every course of action available to the Canadian people should be pursued to support small business."

He said Trident owes his company $46,000, and the loss would put the company "in dire financial straits."

Summerfeldt said he had spent 19 years in the aircraft industry and felt Trident had good potential if only the government would lend its support and encouragement.

Hospital facilities seen key to medical school

Adequate hospital training facilities must be in place before a medical school can be established at the University of Victoria, a Victoria Medical Society spokesman said today.

Vice-president Dr. Michael Bassett said regional expansion and the operation of the new Helmcken Road will be the first step toward establishing a medical school at UVic.

He said four or five years ago the VMS approached the provincial government but the University of B.C. at that time wanted to increase its number of its medical students from 70 or 80 up to 100.

"Vancouver was given the priority and Victoria was put on hold," he said.

Bassett was responding to recent comments by Universities, Science and Technology Minister Pat McGeer that indifference on the part of the medical profession in Victoria is one of the reasons UVic does not have a medical school.

Bassett said a pediatric training program had been set up in Victoria but the facilities proved inadequate for the training of some 12 Royal Jubilee Hospital interns, another 10 interns from the Victoria General Hospital and 10 residents from UBC.

Once the new Helmcken Road hospital is established, Bassett said the first steps toward a medical school could be residencies in family practice, pediatrics and obstetrics at the new hospital.

"The hospital will become a referral centre for the whole island," he said.

He said such steps are necessary before a medical school can be planned.

"It costs $7,000 per year per student. You don't put a medical school in overnight."

Comments irk rights group

The Human Rights Commission has taken the Capital Region Board to task for not appointing a woman to its economic development commission.

In a prepared statement the commission said it feels comments made by board chairman Jim Campbell and Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier at a meeting last Thursday were discriminatory.

"It should not be necessary to remind the gentlemen of the board that women make up about 50 per cent of the population. They own property, pay taxes, and vote.

"Discrimination against them is forbidden by the Human Rights Code of B.C."

Howie's hustling with heart

Al Howie's at it again.

Howie cantered off from Victoria city hall this morning on his latest marathon run — a 225-kilometre jaunt to Courtenay — in a bid to raise funds for the B.C. Heart Foundation.

Howie, 34, hopes to reach the up-Island community around 9.30 a.m. Tuesday.

Pledges can be sent to the Heart Foundation office at 1008 Blanshard or phoned into 382-4035.

Howie carried greetings from Victoria Mayor Bill Tindall to Courtenay Mayor Robert McPhee.

Howie says he's running for the Heart Fund as a result of meeting three-year-old Jaryn Perkins, whose life was saved when the Heart Foundation arranged to fly him to Toronto for a heart operation.

Midnight run to Seattle in plans for new ferry

By MIKE HUGHES

Victorians may have the opportunity this summer to take a midnight cruise to Seattle.

The midnight run is included in a tentative schedule recommended by ferry officials and local businessmen who met Friday to discuss the replacement of the Princess Marguerite by the Queen of Prince Rupert.

In announcing the replacement Thursday, Finance Minister Hugh Curtis said that although the Prince Rupert has only about half the capacity of the 1,600-seat Marguerite, the new vessel will make two round trips a day instead of just one.

Ald. Bob Wright, who was at Friday's meeting attended by B.C. Ferry Corp. and B.C. Steamship Co. Ltd. officials, said today the tentative schedule calls for the Prince Rupert to leave Victoria at midnight and offload passengers about 6:30 a.m. in Seattle.

The vessel would then leave Seattle at about 7:30 a.m., arrive here about noon and leave again an hour later. The next trip from Seattle would be about 6 p.m. or 6:30 p.m. arriving in Victoria around 11 p.m., he said.

Brian Small, manager of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, said today the two round trips a day would open up whole new opportunities for Victoria and Seattle people.

He said Victorians would be able to spend a day in Seattle and return that night and those coming the other way will be able to spend 12 hours here rather than two or three hours when the Marguerite was only making the one run.

He added that if a hydrofoil service is set up to supplement the ferry run those who just want a quick trip between the two cities will also be taken care of.

The hydrofoil possibility was also discussed at Friday's meeting and Small said a report in Saturday's Times that Boeing had no jetfoils available is erroneous.

Small said he talked this morning with Robin Little, Boeing's general manager of marketing in Seattle, and was assured the company has a jetfoil available for lease right now.

Wright agreed with Small, saying there was no question but that a hydrofoil was available.

Rudy Stapes of Boeing's jetfoil division was quoted Saturday as saying the company has no jetfoils available immediately for charter or sale.

There is a private group in Victoria, including former B,C. cabinet minister Sam Bawlf, interested in providing a hydrofoil service and Little was in Victoria today to discuss the matter.

Meanwhile, the decision to take the Prince Rupert off the Vancouver-Island-Prince Rupert run has triggered angry reverberations up the B.C. coast.

The up-coast residents say the Prince Rupert's replacement, the Queen of Surrey, won't be refitted until June and the Prince Rupert will be taken off the run in early April.

City man's swim brings frigid death

The sheriff's office in Flathead County, Mont., is investigating the death by freezing of a Victoria father of two who apparently wandered away from a ski resort's heated outdoor pool in below-zero weather last week.

Sheriff Al Rierson said the death of Robert Lineham, 36, is under investigation. His body was found Friday in the woods bordering the Big Mountain ski resort near Whitefish, Mont., but officials did not reveal the death until Sunday.

Rierson said Lineham went swimming Wednesday night, apparently became disoriented and wandered off. He was not reported missing until Friday, shortly before his body was found. Lineham was wearing only swimming trunks when he died.

The temperature was about -32 degrees Celsius when Lineham disappeared.

Rierson told the Times in a telephone interview this morning that authorities had not determined why the man wandered away.

The sheriff is awaiting the results of blood and urine tests to determine if an autospy is necessary.

Lineham was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ken W. Lineham, 1345 Topaz. He is also survived by two children, Curtis, 10, and Nicole, 8.

Lineham had been active in real estate development, and his mother said he was an avid skier.

He had returned to Victoria from Europe just before Christmas, and then had gone to the Montana resort just before New Year's.

Mrs. Lineham said she and he husband were stunned by the news. They will fly to Montana today or tomorrow for funeral services and cremation.

White Cane week launched

It's White Cane Week across Canada and the blind and the people who work with them want everyone to realize just how precious sight is.

It's estimated that 2,600 Canadians lose their sight each year and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is sponsoring White Cane Week to make the public aware of safety concerns and of the needs of the blind.

Participants include the Canadian National Institute for the Blind (CNIB), the Canadian Council for the Blind (CCB) and Victoria's Out of Sight Club and the White Cane Club.

Lieut.-Gov. Henry Bell-Irving is involved, too. He presented Jennifer Belton, a Grade 5 student at Savory School, with an award for her poster marking White Cane Week.

The presentation to Jennifer, whose poster was judged best from the Vancouver Island district in a cross-Canada competition, was made today at Government House.

The CCB and the CNIB will jointly sponsor an open house from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday at the CNIB building, 1609 Blanshard.

Victoria riding candidates will speak on their party's policies in relation to the blind and the handicapped at the open house.

Not on voters' list? It's now or never

"I don't know what's happening. It seems as if the whole population has just woken up."

To the election official who asked to remain anonymous, the "whole population" is the Canadian electorate, and many of them are apparently just realizing that the deadline for being placed on the voters' list in urban ridings is 10 o'clock tonight.

That's an absolute, final, no-exceptions deadline.

The deadline for voters in rural ridings (and only 35 of Canada's 266 ridings are designated rural) was 10 p.m. last Wednesday, but a rural voter accompanied by a neighbor already on the list can be sworn in right up to and including election day.

But the urban voter who didn't get his card in the mail or who simply isn't on the list only has until tonight. The revisal officers are sitting until 6 p.m., breaking for supper until 7 p.m. and sitting until 10 p.m. and applicants must appear in person.

The Victoria returning office is at 1837 Fort Street, while the Esquimalt-Saanich office is in the Mackenzie Mall, 1545 Mackenzie Avenue.

The advance polls will be held between noon and 8 p.m. on Feb. 9, 11 and 12. In Esquimalt-Saanich, advance polls will be at the Garth Homer Centre, 813 Darwin, the Esquimalt Recreation Centre at 527 Fraser, and at Sanscha Hall in Sidney.

In Victoria, there is only one advance poll, and that's at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, 643 Broughton.

If you definitely can't get to the advance polls or to your regular polling station on election day Feb. 18, you can vote at the office of the returning officer, starting at noon today through Feb. 15, but excluding the days of the advance poll.

All you have to do is convince the returning officer you simply can't make it to the advance or regular polls.

For this special voting, the returning office is open from noon to 6 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. Monday at the Calgary public stockyards totalled 43 head. There were too few sales to quote any market trends.

Gas revenues drop for B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's natural gas revenues dropped by $1.5 million in January because exports to the United States had to be curtailed.

The recent cold snap in the province forced Westcoast Transmission to reduce its natural gas exports to the U.S. by as much as 63 million cubic feet a day so that domestic gas users would have enough to keep their houses warm.

Northwest Pipeline Corp. of Salt Lake City, the company which buys the gas from Westcoast, has a contract which calls for 809 million cubic feet of gas a day, but when temperatures dropped last week there were four days when Northwest's allotment was slashed by 63, 50, 41 and 45 million cubic feet.

Because the export price for natural gas is much higher than the domestic price, B.C. lost $250,000 in revenue for those four days alone.

Gas sold to the U.S. fetches about $5 a thousand cubic feet while gas sold domestically brings $1.17.

The problem is pipeline capacity. Westcoast's main pipeline can carry 1,390 million cubic feet a day and company president Ed Phillips says the system has been going full-tilt for the last few weeks.

LONG LINE OF LINERS is inspected by workman at the Hoosier Energy power plant under construction at Merom, Ind. Fiberglass stack liners, each 20 feet in diameter, will be used in a 715-foot-high chimney to combat corrosion.

Job in Ethiopia

MONTREAL (UPC) — The Ethiopia Sugar Corp., in Addis Ababa, has contracted the Shawinigan Group to consult on the development of a $200-million (U.S.) sugar plantation and factory complex, the Quebec-based consulting firm said Thursday.

The project, to be funded through a loan from the African Development Bank, includes construction of a townsite complete with all facilities to accommodate 4,000 people.

Redpath International Inc. and Agrodev Canada Inc., both Canadian companies, were chosen as subconsultants to provide the sugar and land expertise.

The Shawinigan Group, an employee-controlled group of consultants in the field of energy and resource development, said the project was aiming for an annual production of 129,000 tons of sugar beginning 1985.

Gun-toting 'drunks' threaten Sakharov

MOSCOW (UPI) — Dissident leader Andrei Sakharov said in a document released today said his life had been threatened by two gun-carrying "drunks" and Soviet authorities had warned him to stop his dissident activity or he would be sent even farther into exile.

Sakharov, who was banished two weeks ago to the city of Gorky 250 miles east of Moscow, also said he told authorities he refused to abide by their exile restrictions and demanded to be brought to trial.

The document was released by Sakharov's wife, Yelena Bonner, who so far is not under the restrictions that prohibit Sakharov from leaving Gorky.

Sakharov, 58, said two workers, "ostenisbly drunk", came to his Gorky apartment last Monday despite the presence of a full-time surveillance team that has stopped visitors in the past.

"They were toying with a pistol," the document said. "The guy who was holding the gun boasted that he was a very good shot. They threatened to stage another Afghanistan in our apartment and destroy us."

Sakharov said the pair also warned of further reprisals.

"They told us not to hold any hope about staying here (in Gorky) long, because a space has already been reserved for them at an insane asylum nearby."

Sakharov said he was summoned to the Gorky prosecutor's office Sunday and told he was violating the restrictions of his exile by having contact with foreigners, even through a second party.

"The deputy prosecutor made it explicitly clear that if I persist in violating the terms of the exile, I will be deported to another place and that sanctions will be taken against my wife as well."

Dissident criticized

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet dissident writer who last week joined a protest against the Kremlin's decision to banish activist leader Andrei Sakharov from Moscow has been branded "an enemy of the socialist system" by a Communist party newspaper.

The attack against Lev Kopelev came Sunday in the newspaper Sovyetskaya Rossiya. It did not say whether any action will be taken against the 68-year-old writer, who has been widely published in the United States and West Germany.

It's an emotional roller-coaster

By AUDREY JOHNSON

Normally one wouldn't think of going to the theatre to experience a ride on a roller-coaster.

But that is the best way to describe the reaction of audiences currently visiting Ira Levin's Deathtrap at McPherson Playhouse.

Laughter all the way punctuated by gasps and shrieks.

In fact, the concerted shout-shriek of a full house at two climax points on opening night was a hair-raising new experience for this reviewer.

I don't think I have ever enjoyed a case of jangled nerves so much.

It would be contrary to all theatre protocol to give away the plot of Bastion Theatre's latest winner. For a winner it will be, no doubt of that, with its star performances by Douglas Rain and Glenn MacDonald and its exceptional theatrical twists. In one sense it is a play within a play as wrung-out thriller playwright Sidney Bruhl is confronted in Act I scene 1, with an obvious brilliant coup by a student from one of his summer seminars — or so it seems until . . . but no more!

It must be sufficient to say that Sidney (Douglas Rain), his wife Myra (Anna Hagan) and Clifford Anderson, the budding playwright (MacDonald) are involved in a fiendishly bizarre plot that recoils in entirely unexpected ways for all concerned, including the audience.

Like many thriller plots it will not bear too close an analysis but the name of the game is fun and excitement and to hell with dissection.

Its most obvious flaw is a final scene that is like an after-thought on Levin's part. It does nothing for the play but smudge the effect of the final climax; in other words, an anti-climax.

Directed by Ed Stephenson with an excellent set design by Ed Kotanen, the five-member ensemble responds well to the powerful presence of Rain, a prominent actor on both sides of the Atlantic and of the border.

Rain invests the role of Bruhl, the mayhem-minded author, with a fullness of dimension, a richness of detail and a strength of personality that is almost hypnotic. His timing is superb. His range, vocally and rhythmically, his attention to detail and use of pace provide a virtuoso performance in character projection.

MacDonald, who stepped into the role of the student, Anderson, virtually at the last moment after the actor originally cast was taken ill, plays mostly in duet with Rain and comes off extremely well, sustaining the brash insolence of the character with a sort of staccato bounding rhythm that makes an effective foil for Rain while creating a buoyant and believable character.

Helga Ten Dorp is a psychic neighbor possessed of powerful ESP. It's a parallel to the Madame Arcati role in Blithe Spirit, but not nearly as well written. Myra Benson, however, handles it with aplomb, milking its comedy and bringing to it as much conviction as is possible.

Anna Hagan's Myra Bruhl is the least impressive characterization in the ensemble, but then it is not a very rewarding part nor one that provides the actress with any opportunity for development.

Robin Marshall, on the other hand, in the small support role of Bruhl's lawyer friend, Porter Milgrim, gives a sharply individualized portrayal that is first rate in every way. It does leave you wishing for more of Porter Milgrim but the P.S. scene tacked on at the end does not fill the bill.

No one who loves to have their spine tingled should miss Deathtrap, which continues through Feb. 16.

Derailment probe has stormy start

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — An inquiry into the Mississauga train derailment had a stormy start today when a lawyer for CP Rail accused three regional policemen of harassment.

The lawyer, Norman Chalmers, said that three Peel Regional Police officers have been harassing CP Rail employees during their investigation into the Nov. 10 derailment of a CP Rail train carrying chlorine and propane gas that forced the evacuation of about 225,000 residents.

Chalmers said the three policemen — on loan from the force to help in the investigation — "harassed specific employees of CP Rail."

"This is not a CP inquiry," Chalmers said. He said that the policemen told several employees that "this is the last chance to change your statement."

"These people are not criminals," he said, adding that if the harassment continues CP Rail will "obtain whatever relief is available" from Mr. Justice Samuel Grange, an Ontario Supreme Court judge who is commissioner of the inquiry.

Steam train promo halted

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Royal Hudson steam train will not go on a promotional tour of the U.S. this year because the cost would be too high, John Plul, the provincial government's travel coordinator said Sunday.

He said the tourism ministry is looking at several alternative.

Plul said last year's promotional tour cost $300,000 and generated about $2 million in tourism revenue. A similar tour this year would cost twice as much, he said.
